Ga.'s Footnotes To History?

Twice within recent days the General Assembly of Georgia has made news which was published, and adversely commented upon around the world.

The first action was the adoption of a resolution declaring the State Senate's opinion that the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution are null and void.

The second news story concerned a House resolution calling upon the Georgia delegation in the Congress of the United States to institute impeachment proceedings against the Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court and five associate justices.

Newspapers in Georgia, with complete understanding of these two resolutions, gave them routine treatment. This was not true in the rest of the nation.

The press of Russia was happy to have the news of the two resolutions. It gave them, and their satellites, a new propaganda weapon against the United States. The press of Europe was bewildered, as was much of that in the United States.

The ironic fact is that the members of the Georgia General Assembly would be dismayed if there was any slight chance of the two amendments being nullified. So, for that matter, would all our citizens.

Five Sections

The 14th Amendment is a lengthy one of five sections. It bars subversives and enemies of the nation from serving in the Congress. It sets out the constitutional provisions concerning the public debt. It establishes how congressional representatives shall be apportioned. It was the Supreme Court interpretation of the first of the five sections which angered a majority of the Georgia Assembly. That section reads:

"Citizenship defined; privileges of citizens.—All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States, and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws."

Certainly no legislator would wish this to be eliminated from the Constitution of his country. What the Georgia press knew was that the members were seeking politically to identify themselves with what they believed to be the public opinion in their state, aroused by the segregation issue. But this is not known to the rest of the country and to foreign countries. To them it is shocking.

Right To Vote

The 15th Amendment is in two sections, as follows:

"Right of certain citizens to vote established.—The right of citizens of the United States to vote shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any State, on account of race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

"Congress given power to enforce this article.—The Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation."

The Legislature of Georgia certainly does not really wish the right of citizens to vote to be abridged.

What we have here is merely a political aberration. The Legislature, because of the very Constitution which it now assails by resolution, is entirely free to do what it has done. Its resolutions are meaningless, insofar as any action is concerned. But the second one, if adopted, will put the congressional delegation on an uncomfortable spot. At least some members may feel they will make themselves politically vulnerable if they do not carry out the resolution. This would do them great damage in the Congress, and the Legislature ought, on reflection, to withdraw it.

Members agitating these resolutions might do well to remember they will become a footnote to the history of these times. The future, and the people of it, will judge them. They presently may have helped themselves politically. But they have done the Assembly and their State a disservice.

Ike Tells Israel World Demands Troops Withdraw

By ALBERT RILEY

Constitution Staff Writer

THOMASVILLE, Feb. 17 — President Eisenhower strongly insisted Sunday that Israel withdraw its forces from Egyptian territory in compliance with "overwhelming" world opinion.

Israel should not use its occupation of the Gaza Strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area as a bargaining point in settling the disputes between the two nations, he said.

The President, in a statement issued from his vacation retreat here, used his strongest language yet on the Israeli situation.

Although no mention was made of sanctions, there appeared to be a strongly implied threat that the United States will have to go along with a United Nations resolution for sanctions against Israel unless that country pulls out of Egypt.

The United Nations assembly in New York may take up the question of sanctions against the Jewish state this week.

Eisenhower issued his statement after interrupting his Sunday rest at peaceful Milestone Plantation to talk three times by telephone with Secretary of State Dulles in Washington.

During that time Dulles apparently had made another fruitless attempt to persuade the Israelis to withdraw from Egypt in talks with Ambassador Abba Eban in the nation's capital.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told newsmen he could say that "the report from the Israeli ambassador (to Dulles) was negative today."

Hagerty, however, refused to answer any questions about the United States position on sanctions.

But there was no doubt that the President was strongly increasing the pressure on the Israelis, who have demanded, as condition to their withdrawal, assurances that United Nations forces would move into the disputed territories.

MESSAGE MADE PUBLIC
At the same time he made his statement, Eisenhower made public a memorandum this country sent to Israel Feb. 11, renewing earlier withdrawal pleas. It is a little unusual for such a document to be made public.

In his statement, the President

Dulles phoned Truman, who is in Florida, last Monday, and told the former president that both he and President Eisenhower would be pleased if he made such a trip.

When this became known Friday, newspaper stories describing the invitation said that it had been "warmly endorsed" by Eisenhower and Dulles. And the event was described as indicating a reversal of the air of coolness toward the former president from the White House.

If the reports about Truman's attitude in this case are accurate, the general belief that there is no love lost between Eisenhower and Truman will persist.

ASKS LETTER
During the telephone conversation Monday, it was learned from State Department sources, Truman indicated a receptiveness to the proposal. He did, however, say his commitments might be complicating. He asked Dulles to put it in writing.

The secretary of state followed up the call with a letter which, it is understood, said merely that the government of Greece and Turkey wished that Truman make the journey; if he would accept a formal invitation would be tendered.

Zhukov Ends Tour
LONDON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Marshal Georgi Zhukov, Soviet defense minister, returned home today from a three-week tour of India and Burma, Moscow radio said.

THE LEGISLATURE OF GEORGIA certainly does not really wish the right of citizens to vote to be abridged.

What we have here is merely a political aberration. The Legislature, because of the very Constitution which it now assails by resolution, is entirely free to do what it has done.

Its resolutions are meaningless, insofar as any action is concerned. But the second one, if adopted, will put the congressional delegation on an uncomfortable spot.

Members agitating these resolutions might do well to remember they will become a footnote to the history of these times. The future, and the people of it, will judge them.

They presently may have helped themselves politically. But they have done the Assembly and their State a disservice.

In a third statement it recommended favorable committee action.

House Girds For School Funds Fight

Duncan Wants Teacher Raises

By WILLIAM M. RATES

Georgia House members Sunday squared off for a battle over how much of the $2,500,000 in anticipated additional school funds should be earmarked for school teacher pay increases.

Rep. Ebb Duncan of Carroll County predicted the House will reverse itself and accept the Senate's plan to spend all the additional funds for teacher salary increases.

But Rep. Frank Twitty of Mitchell said he would insist that the House stand by its original position to earmark only half the money for higher salaries. The other half could be used for school maintenance and operations or for teacher pay at the option of county school boards.

MAJOR FIGHT

The conflict between the House and Senate versions loomed as the major fight facing the General Assembly in the final week of the 1957 session. The Legislature will adjourn Friday.

If the House does not yield to the Senate position on the school financing bill, the measure will have to go to a conference committee.

Sponsored by Gov. Griffin, the bill would boost by $2,500,000 a year the amount local school systems would be required to pay toward financing the Minimum Foundation Program for Education.

$100 A YEAR

Griffin originally proposed using this money to give teachers a $100 a year pay increase. Technically, the legislation would unfreeze the so-called "charge-back" or local participation formula of the Foundation Program.

The Senate approved the bill as it was originally presented. But the House tacked on Twitty's 50-50 amendment.

Duncan, chairman of the House University Committee, disagreed sharply with Twitty's prediction that the House would reject the Senate bill when it comes to a vote. He said there would be a "maximum" of 35 votes against the Senate version.

Duncan said the governor had promised school leaders to give teachers a $100 pay increase if the charge-back was unfrozen. "The governor has told me that he hopes the House will agree with the Senate amendment to give the teachers a $100 raise," Duncan said.

House Floor Leader Hawkins, who accepted Twitty's amendment when the bill was before the House, said he plans to confer with Griffin on the question Monday morning.

Hawkins, meanwhile, predicted the House would go along with a Senate change in the Jekyll Island bill to abolish the five-man Jekyll Island Authority and substitute a board.

Democratic Council Asks Congress To Pass 'Rights' Laws This Term

By LAWRENCE E. DAVIES

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17 — The Democratic Advisory Council today issued its first series of pronouncements since it won from the party's national committee full powers to formulate and interpret Democratic policies between conventions.

The body, new to the American political scene, acting theoretically on behalf of the nation's many millions of Democrats, called upon Democratic members of Congress to enact civil rights legislation at this session.

It deplored the Eisenhower administration's conduct of foreign policy and the President's Middle East resolution on prevention of Communist aggression as failing to meet the problems in that area.

In a third statement it recommended favorable committee action.

Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, announced the appointment of a five-member steering committee for the council that appeared to have a liberal, pro-civil rights complexion.

Its makeup includes one from the deep south—National Committee Chairman Camille F. Gravel Jr. of Louisiana, chairman of the Southern Conference of members of the national committee.

His colleagues on the steering committee, which, as the name implies, will direct the organization of details and the staff of the council, will be Adlai E. Stevenson, the party's nominee for president in 1952 and 1956; Gov. Harriman of New York, Gov. Williams of Michigan, and national committeeman Paul Ziffren of California.

The council had considered its statements at two sessions, behind closed doors, since the Democratic National Committee gave the body its blessing Friday morning.

Chairman Butler informed reporters that the civil rights resolution had been adopted with one dissenting vote. He said Mrs. Lennard Thomas of Alabama had opposed the adoption of any statement on civil rights "whether."

70 Are Killed When Fire Flashes Through Home For Aged in Missouri

Townpeople Rescue Many Of Bedridden

By ALLAN MERRITT

WARRENTON, Mo., Feb. 17 (AP)—Fire sped through an old folks' home here today in minutes, trapping almost half of the inmates and leaving an estimated death toll of 70 or more.

Intense heat drove back firemen and rescue workers attempting to reach the bodies hours after the flash fire.

The state highway patrol reported 71 of the 155 aged inmates of the 3-story brick building missing. Forty-five of them were women.

"FROM 70 ON UP"

The highway patrol said there had been no check yet of the employees of the home and some 50 visitors believed in the home when the fire started.

County Coroner F. H. Knigge said the death toll would run "from 70 on up." The operator of the home, Woodrow O'Sullivan, said he had no idea how the fire started.

The flames spread so fast Mrs. Knigge, wife of the coroner, said it was all over in 10 or 15 minutes. "I heard screams and ran from my home to the building," she said. "By the time I got there 10 or 15 minutes later it was all over."

RESCUERS RISK LIVES

Firemen, townspeople and attendants risked their lives to carry many bedridden patients and the injured from the flaming building in this east-central Missouri town of 1,600. Three of the inmates were hospitalized and others were treated and released.

The bodies of the victims were so badly charred that firemen used plastic bags and cardboard cartons to gather them up. Most of the bodies were found in the basement where they had fallen as floors gave way. Only four bodies had been recovered late tonight.

Warren Stuart, an employee at a filling station across the street, said he saw the fire start.

Storms Make Queen's Voyage a Nightmare

By R. E. BUCKINGHAM

SETUBAL, Portugal, Feb. 17 (AP)—Atlantic gales turned Queen Elizabeth's "second honeymoon" into a nautical nightmare today aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

The Queen, reunited with her husband, the Duke of Edinburgh yesterday after a four-month separation, appeared slightly seasick when she left the yacht anchored in the port here to go ashore with her husband in a blinding rain and visit the Duke of Palmela, an old family friend. She was dressed in white with a red hat. He sported a trenchcoat and brown hat.

2 VESSELS SANK

The Duke of Edinburgh, an old sea dog, looked as jaunty as ever despite hail and the pounding of waves so high they sank two fishing vessels in the harbor. The sudden gale winds ripped up palm trees and shredded thousands of flags and other decorations hung out by Portuguese to honor the visiting British royal family.

The fury of the storms struck the Britannia during the night. The Queen, who has no love for the sea, looked pale and slightly upset when she came ashore with her husband at the fishing village of Setubal.

HUNDREDS JOIN CLEAN-UP

Hundreds of workmen turned out in oilskins to start clearing up the debris in time for the Queen's formal entry tomorrow into Lisbon, 20 miles away, to begin a royal three-day tour.

Until then, the weekend belongs to Elizabeth and Philip. The warmth of their greeting at Montijo airport yesterday all but erased the recent rumors of a royal rift.

Today, despite the Queen's obvious indisposition, they appeared a devoted couple.

2 Pressing To Change Ike Doctrine

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—Sens. Douglas (D-Ill.) and O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) served notice today they will fight in the Senate to force further changes in the administration's Middle East resolution.

The Senate is scheduled to start debate tomorrow on a rewritten version of a House-approved resolution authorizing President Eisenhower to dispense economic aid and to use troops, if he deems it necessary, to counter Communist aggression in the area.

SAY POINTS OVERLOOKED

Passage is expected in about 10 days. Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said he thinks there will be fewer than 20 votes against the measure.

Douglas and O'Mahoney said in separate interviews they believe the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees overlooked some important points when they rewrote the resolution.

As approved by the committees, the principal section says that if the President determines the necessity thereof, the United States is "prepared" to use its armed forces to aid nations "requesting assistance against armed aggression from any country controlled by international communism."

BARRIERS

O'Mahoney said he objects to an attached provision which says that the use of troops "shall be consonant with the treaty obligations of the United States and with the Charter of the United Nations."

Missing Nurse Phones Her Sister from Florida

SWAN QUARTER, N.C., Feb. 17 (AP)—The search for a missing nurse who disappeared mysteriously from a yacht anchored at nearby Ocracoke Island Feb. 9 was called off today by Hyde County Sheriff Charles Cahoon, who said the woman is alive and in Florida.

Sheriff Cahoon said he talked by telephone today with a sister of Mrs. Mary Ann Scates, who told him she had been in telephone contact with her sister.

The sheriff said Mrs. Marie McDonald of Trenton, N. J., told him that Mrs. Scates called her Thursday night from "somewhere in Florida."

"She didn't know where in Florida the call came from," Sheriff Cahoon said. "She told me that she knew it was her sister by her voice and would swear that it was her."

He continued:

"She said that Mrs. Scates wanted to know how her little girl was getting on. The sister said she could tell that Mrs. Scates was very much upset and sick. Mrs. Scates told her not to try to get in touch with her any more."

Dr. James T. Dodge, a general practitioner at Trenton, N. J., reported that the nurse disappeared from his anchored $18,000 yacht.

Dr. Dodge theorized that his pretty nurse might have been pitched overboard during rough weather.

He said he went below to sleep at 8 p.m. and said Mrs. Scates told him she was going to sit up awhile. When he awoke the next morning, Mrs. Scates was missing.

Foreign Aid Cost Is Too Little To Harm U.S., Senators Told

By E. W. KENWORTHY
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—Foreign aid programs since 1948 were said today to have involved "relatively small" cost and sacrifice for the American people, and to have had "relatively minor" impact on the U.S. economy.

This is the "major conclusion of a study prepared by the National Planning Assn., an economic research organization, for the special Senate committee to study foreign aid programs.

The study is one of 11 prepared by 10 leading research groups under contract to the special committee.

The committee is made up of members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee under the chairmanship of Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.). It was created last July during the bitter fight over attempts to cut the President's foreign aid budget.

NOW "CONFIDENTIAL"

The formidable stack of reports comprises perhaps the most thorough-going review ever made of the foreign aid program. The reports total some 2,000 pages and are said to have cost $300,000. They are now stamped "confidential" but will be published later.

All the studies except one recommend a continuation of the foreign aid programs, at least at their present level of expenditure, for varying periods up to "two or three decades."

In a Congress increasingly disposed to taper off foreign aid, and especially the economic programs, the reports will be read with a critical eye.

In a letter submitted to the National Planning Assn. study to Fulbright, Hans Christian Sonne, chairman of the board of NPA, advises:

"If your committee's review of the foreign aid program leads to the conclusion that it is useful for attaining our international objective, I believe the program should be continued at the present or an expanded rate, irrespective of the relatively minor effects on the domestic economy."

In contending that the effects on the economy have been relatively minor, the study points out that since 1948, the aid programs have accounted for only 1.7 per cent of the gross national product (the value of all goods and services), and last year accounted for only 1 per cent.

SMALL INVESTMENT

It points out further that the aid programs have involved only about 1.5 per cent of U.S. production over the last nine years.

On the basis of these figures, the study argues that "it is difficult to claim that United States employment, prices, or consumption as a whole could have been seriously affected, for better or worse, by foreign aid expenditures."

The authors concede that these expenditures might have slightly aggravated the inflationary trend from mid-1950 to mid-1951, and might have slightly stabilized the 1948 and 1954 recessions. But they insist that "on the whole the inflationary or stabilizing effects have been very slight."

They contend further that there is no validity either in the argument that foreign aid is bankrupting the country, or in the argument that there would be a depression if it were cut off.

To the "bankrupt" argument, the authors reply:

"If the United States were to double the present size of the foreign aid program to $8.2 billion a year by 1965, and assuming a gross national production level by then of $565 billion (in 1955 prices), there would be little additional impact on the United States economy."

It all started three months ago when the council decided there was something undignified about labeling this little community as just a Puddle on the River Piddle.

They changed the name from its ancient Puddletown to the new-fangled Piddletown. At least it bore the correct name of the little River Piddle which flows through the middle of this town of 781 population, the council declared.

"Piddling nonsense," roared shocked Puddlers. They insisted Piddle was even more undignified than Puddle and demanded the name be changed back.

The County Council put up its "Piddletown" signs. But the local

Hypnotist Arches Some Eyebrows By Claiming He Curved Flat Chests

BOLTON, England, Feb. 17—Mohammed Ali Beg Mirza, 50-year-old hypnotist, claims he can take a flat-chested female, put her in a trance and expand her vital statistics by inches.

"After a few treatments she put on two inches," he reported. "Another 33-inch lady came once a fortnight and put on half an inch each time."

The report of Mirza's exploits, printed in the British press this morning, was accompanied by a physician's warning against relying on hypnosis to expand the female form.

"If you are concerned about your bosom," said the physician, "consult your doctor."

27 Put Behind Pack Ice for Year In Antarctic for Science and U. S.

(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)

ABOARD U.S.S. GLACIER

OFF ANTARCTICA, Feb. 17—

Twenty-seven men were left at Wilkes Station last night for a long year alone together.

The men of the three-ship naval task group that, in two arduous weeks, built a new base on Antarctica's barren Clark Peninsula sailed north into the pack ice.

Probably few persons in the world are happier than the 850 men aboard these ships. They are homeward bound.

The parting was more prolonged than had been expected. The scientists and Navy personnel of the base stood on the ice cliffs in front of their camp waving as two landing craft carrying the departing sailors struggled against ice floes that had suddenly drifted in, clogging the harbor.

The barges were heavily laden with men who had just attended a flag-raising ceremony at the base.

All the men were gaudy in windproof trousers and parkas brightly colored to aid identification. The Navy Seabees construction men wore yellow. Crew members were in green, while members of the task unit staff were in blue.

Those ashore waved and continued to wave, but the barges got no farther away despite the efforts of their diesel engines.

Then at last the floes began to move aside and the landing craft finally reached the ships.

When the task group prepared to depart at 2 a.m., the Glacier found two knots tied in her anchor chain just above the anchor.

This delayed the sailing almost three hours.

The icebreaker had to go alongside the cargo ship Arica, which hoisted the anchor and the knotted chain onto her own deck to enable the Glacier's men to straighten out the tangle.

A few days ago the cargo ship Greenville Victory had a similar mysterious knotting of her massive chain. Presumably the knots were tied as the vessels swung in shifting winds, dragging the chain over the anchor.

The men ashore are to make scientific observations during the next year in cooperation with about 40 other Antarctic bases.

Their station is one of the most completely equipped outposts set up in the Antarctic for the International Geophysical Year 1957-58, which begins in July.

At the flag-raising ceremony, Capt. Gerald L. Ketchum of Bellingham, Wash., the task group commander, congratulated the various Navy units that had built the station in less than a third of the scheduled time. Then he turned the base over to Carl Eklund of Tomahawk, Wis., leader of the scientific party, and Lt. (j.g.) Donald R. Burnett of Mount Clemens, Mich., who head the Navy supporting group at the station.

Eklund said the coming year would see "the most complete, the most internationally cooperative program of geophysical studies ever attempted in the Antarctic."

He asserted that he and his associates would do their utmost to match the finest work done by the other stations.

Bolshevik Bosom Baring Is Okayed by Kremlin's Bosses

By HAROLD K. MILKS

MOSCOW, Feb. 17—Decolletage has returned to Moscow for the first time since the Communist Revolution 40 years ago—but not yet in public, only in an official style show.

Strapless gowns, bare shoulders and low-cut dresses at an exhibit of the latest Soviet modes at the state-owned GUM department store here today revealed more of the Russian bosom than any styles seen in this nation in a generation or more.

A mixed crowd of men and women, whose plain winter attire contrasted with the new fashions, watched the revolutionary new clothes being modeled to the accompaniment of American music. The music seemed appropriate—because even though the Soviet store officials did not disclose where they got these styles, it appeared they had been lifted from the latest American fashion magazines.

Several "empire" gowns were displayed, including a "My Fair Lady" gown which an attractive Russian model wore with a red-lined black coat, black net gloves and French spike-heeled shoes.

For the men there was a demonstration of the first shawl-collared dinner jackets seen in a Soviet shop.

There's one big catch to all of this. None of these dresses or suits can be purchased in the Soviet Union. Only patterns are for sale—costing an average of 45 rubles—$11.25—each. After getting the pattern the would-be owner of the new dress or suit must find the materials and then seek out a tailor or seamstress to do the job.

(Decollete styles have always been regarded in the Soviet Union since the Revolution as a trademark of "bourgeois decadence" and severely frowned on).

Knowland Vows to Fight Economic Aid for Poland

Says Regime Not Trustworthy; Also Against Arms to Yugoslavs

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (AP)—Sen Knowland (R-Calif.) said today he will fight any Eisenhower administration move to give economic assistance to Poland and will oppose continuing military aid to Yugoslavia.

Knowland, the Senate's Republican leader, declared in a Lithuanian Independence Day speech prepared for delivery here:

"I shall oppose the taking of a single dollar from the overburdened American taxpayer to build the economic strength of any Communist country behind the Soviet Iron Curtain or to give military aid to any Communist state anywhere in the world."

Knowland said Wladyslaw Gomułka, first secretary of the Polish Communist party, and Poland's Communist government "are not to be trusted."

The California senator, regarded as a potential candidate for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination, placed himself squarely in opposition to the administration's invitation to Poland to negotiate for an American loan.

A Warsaw delegation is due here soon to seek 100 million dollars in credits to buy American cotton, farm and mining machinery, fats, oils and other products.

Knowland told a reporter in advance of his speech that he is opposed to giving the Gomułka government such assistance.

The possible granting of credits is the administration's followup to Eisenhower's implied offer to help a non-Soviet dominated government during the October revolt when Poland won a measure of independence from Moscow.

"COUNTERFEIT ELECTIONS"

Knowland made it plain he does not believe Russian influence was reduced materially. He attacked what he called "the farce of Gomułka counterfeit elections such as Poland was insulted with on Sunday, Jan. 20, while Soviet troops still occupy that restless country."

He said a "propaganda barrage is developing here and abroad to give economic aid to the Communist states of Eastern Europe."

"For what purpose?" he demanded. "To lessen the drain on the Soviet Union so it will have more economic resources to use against the nations of the free world or to subvert the uncommitted countries outside the Iron Curtain?"

BAYONET BACKING

"To sustain godless local Communist chieftains who would not last a month were it not for the support of Soviet bayonets within their borders? To give character and prestige to men whose hands are red with blood of those patriots whose love of freedom for their countrymen was greater than their love for life?"

"Are we to bolster sagging Communist economies whose own workers, by strikes, slowdown or sabotage in the face of death penalties and prison terms, have contributed to the weakening of an important segment of the Communist regime?"

Knowland said "none of these things make sense to me."

VOTED AGAINST AID

The California senator, who voted against continuing military aid to Yugoslavia last year, did not mention that country by name. But it is the only Communist country receiving American military assistance.

President Eisenhower suspended military aid to Yugoslavia last summer and now has under consideration the question of resuming it. The Yugoslavs have been getting a small amount of replacement parts in the meantime.

CONSIDER THE Episcopal WAY

WHY do we have "formal" worship?

We don't think of our worship services and customs in the Episcopal Church as necessarily "formal." We feel that if all are to participate in worship together, it is necessary to follow a plan. More than three-fourths of all the Christians in the world worship according to a pattern.

We look upon our services as having great dignity and reverence, arranged so that instead of sitting back and taking no part in the service, we can join with our minister and fellow-worshippers in an outpouring of praise and thanksgiving to God for His goodness and mercy to us. The Episcopal Church is "altar-centered." Worship is primary. All else—preaching, music, scripture lessons, important though they be, are secondary to the praise and worship of Almighty God on Sundays.

If this is what worship of God means to you, we invite you to join us, today, in actively worshipping God in the Episcopal Church near you.

SPECTACULAR FIRE—A fire truck and firemen are silhouetted against flames in losing battle with fire which late Saturday night swept Mooney's Lake, at Morosgo Way, NE, off the northeast leg of the Expressway. Hundreds of spectators gathered to watch the blaze. Cause was undetermined, but is believed to have started in wooden bathhouse, according to Lt. Roy Parker of fire inspection department. Henry H. Jordan of 475 Clifton Rd., NE, owner, said loss could not be immediately estimated. The property was insured, Jordan said. Bathhouse and pavilion were destroyed.

'Model A' Mike's Owner Found — Dog Gone

The owner of Mike, the mongrel with an affection for Model "A"s, has been found... but, now, the big search is on for Mike.

Buster Sutton, owner of the two-year-old dog with yellow hair, went to a parked Model "A" on Oglethorpe ave., SW, Sunday morning to claim his dog, which had been standing fast by the auto for three weeks.

But, when he arrived, Mike wasn't there. However, residents of the street reported seeing a car drive up earlier. A man got out, put the canine in, and drove away.

Sutton says Mike probably happened upon the broken-down auto about three weeks ago while following him to a West End bank. The owner of a combination country store-filling station which gives away rebuilt Model "A"s as an advertising gimmick, Sutton believes the dog thought he was "right at home" when he came upon the car on Oglethorpe Ave.

"Mike was brought up around old cars," Sutton says. "And I would like to get him back because he has always stayed around to protect my mother-in-law."

He said he was offering a $10 reward for the dog's safe return.

Tranquilizer Drugs Aid Many, Specialist Says

New "tranquilizer" drugs are reaching into the back wards of mental hospitals to return formerly "incurable" patients to society, Dr. Carl Pfeiffer said Sunday.

Pfeiffer, professor of pharmacology at Emory University Medical School, appeared on WSB-TV Press Gallery, sponsored by The Atlanta Journal, with Dr. C. Stewart Nash, Nash, of Rochester, N.Y., is one of America's foremost ear, nose and throat specialists.

The two doctors are delegates to the three-day Atlanta Graduate Medical Assembly opening here Monday.

"In some cases the new drugs are making mental hospital output larger than the input," said Pfeiffer. "This is something new."

Pfeiffer said these persons cannot be considered "cured," but that they are "socially rehabilitated." He said studies show about two-thirds will return to institutions if they stop taking the drugs.

OTHERS FAILED

He said that prior to discovery of new tranquilizer drugs mental institutions relied largely on insulin and electric shock treatments in difficult cases. The new drugs, he said, are working in cases where these methods failed.

Pfeiffer said 40 per cent of patients in the "back wards," those considered difficult or impossible to cure, are reacting favorably to the drugs.

Dr. Nash said that in his experience about one-third of all patients suffer from psychosomatic (physical symptoms caused by mental or emotional troubles) maladies, one-third from a combination of psychosomatic and physical difficulties, and only the remaining third are ill from physical factors alone.

Pointing out that many "psychosomatic" patients were now being cured by the new drugs,

Voters Will Place Blame Where Due

Despite the pleas of civic groups and the newspapers and the weight of public opinion, it now appears definite that another early primary is to be crammed down the throats of Atlanta voters.

With only five days left of the current General Assembly session, the bill which would permit Atlantans to vote in the fall—which they did before the election date was rigged in 1952 to accommodate his honor, Mayor William B. Hartsfield—has been left to die.

Its demise is due solely to the fact that Rep. Muggsy Smith refuses to sign it, although the other three members of the Fulton delegation have done so and have begged him to go along.

We have said, and we still believe, that both the mayor and Rep. Smith are endangering their political futures by their hard-headedness. When two people are thus able to circumvent the will of the majority, the repercussions are bound to be reflected by the voters themselves.

We have heard all the supposed reasons why there should be an early primary. They all add up to a belief by the mayor that it is to his advantage to get it over as quickly as possible. They show a distrust of the voters' judgment and a fear of future events.

Why should the mayor be afraid to take his chances for election at any time?

Early primaries are essentially an evil. Rigging election dates for the advantage of anyone—in or out of office—cannot be justified or rationalized.

Rep. Smith's blind loyalty to the mayor and the latter's willingness to insist upon it are puzzling and disconcerting. But the facts speak for themselves.

Be that as it may, an early primary now seems certain. And to paraphrase the familiar poem, there's no doubt this time about "who killed Cock Robin." May his honor and Mr. Smith make no mistake about that!

The Senate Puts Jekyll On Road to the Future

The General Assembly seems about to put Jekyll Island on the road to development for all the people of Georgia.

That, in effect, is the interpretation many thoughtful people are giving the Senate's action Friday in overwhelmingly approving an amendment to a House-approved measure for developing the island which will set up a new Jekyll Island Authority.

The new authority will be in the nature of a constitutional board and will remove the island as far from politics as can be done without outright sale.

Although the measure was defeated in the House when originally proposed by Rep. George Smith, it was revived in the Senate with the backing of Sen. Peyton Hawes. These two gentlemen deserve commendation as does Gov. Griffin for supporting the Legislature in its efforts to follow his recommendations to take the island out of politics.

The House of Representatives should lose little time in approving the Senate's action. While these measures may not solve the Jekyll problem entirely, they lay the groundwork for a new start on a splendid project for all the people of Georgia and for a renewal of confidence in its development.

Jekyll Island has a great potential. May this General Assembly be the one which charted its path in that direction.

Georgia's Urban Areas Get Rough Treatment

It's a shame the way the Georgia folks out in the country treat their city cousins.

Not satisfied with watering down Cousin Jim's vote when he moves into the urban area, they make it plain they just don't want Jim to vote at all. You'd think they don't believe in democracy.

Tax the cities, the rural folks say. Give 'em back just what you feel like giving 'em. But don't let them have much say so in the government.

The attitude was made plain last Friday when the Georgia House State of the Republic Committee killed a proposal to let Fulton counties register to vote in the neighborhoods where they live.

No one less than the governor's House floor leader himself opposed the proposal as one which would give Fulton more voting strength. He's afraid of the day when fair-minded people over Georgia get fed-up with the injustice of the county unit system.

A former governor in dedicating a bridge in southeast Georgia once referred to Atlanta and Fulton County as the goose that can be plucked every year.

We would remind the Legislature that there was another goose, too. One that died because the owner got greedy. Atlanta and Fulton County aren't the only ones that chafe under legislative treatment. Bibb, Muscogee and the other large-population counties are suffering from the antiurban attitude of the Legislature.

The cities in Georgia are asking fair play—in the franchise, in a share of tax revenue and in the power to tax.

They'll get it some day. It's a poor county in Georgia that doesn't have at least a couple of thousand natives living in Greater Atlanta.

They're getting tired of being bled by their rural kinfolk. There may come a time when they pull the latchstring inside when they see their country cousins coming to town.

Wendell Willkie Lives In His Country's Heart

If he had lived, Wendell L. Willkie would have been 65 years old today. Millions of Americans will remember his meteoric rise and the first efforts by a national figure to build a "new Republicanism."

Few people have captured the imagination of the country as did Willkie. Running against another remarkably popular president, FDR, he did extremely well. He saw the greatness and the potential of America, as did FDR, and did his best to persuade his party to do the same.

Today in New York a plaque will be dedicated in his memory at the public library, with leading Americans participating.

Struck down before his great potential could be realized, Willkie lives on in the affections of the people. Another Republican who shares much of his philosophy is now in the White House. Both of them demonstrated to the GOP that a party which lives in the past cannot hope to thrive in a country which looks to the future.

We are pleased to join in grateful tribute to the memory of a great American whose death early in life deprived the nation of talents it could ill afford to lose. But his influence and inspiration still live, guiding his party and true believers in freedom everywhere.

State Rightfully Moves To Pay for Mistake

The Georgia Legislature is about to make partial amends to a man imprisoned 11 months through clerical error. The House has voted $2,080 to Edward Jones, Upson County Negro, as reimbursement for the overtime he did in jail.

Surely, that is simple justice. We're happy to see it done. Saying "Excuse me" wouldn't have been enough.

We hope Edward Jones' $2,080 is not subject to tax. It does seem further "withholding" would be unfair in face of the 11 months the man has been withheld from the society of his fellows.

Fluoridation Is Answer To Quest of Dentists

In marking Children's Dental Health Week, the American Dental Assn. noted that for a long time research has been under way to find means of preventing tooth decay that will bypass human failings.

By "human failings" they mean insistence on eating sweets and biting nails and bypassing the toothbrush.

The dental association notes one of these approaches already is paying off. That is fluoridation—inexpensive, safe, effective.

"Fluoridation," says the nation's dentists through their professional association, "is a health measure that ranks with the chlorination of water and the pasteurization of milk."

Fluoridation has the endorsement of all major health organizations in the country. Yet the spread is retarded by an irresponsible opposition dealing in half truths and deliberate misinformation. Children too young to vote are the losers.

By the way, we are delighted to learn that in Columbus a 13-member committee appointed by the city commission to study fluoridation has come in with a four-page typewritten report unanimously in favor of this public-health measure.

President Eisenhower, speaking of negotiations with the Russians, said Soviet behavior "is rather unpredictable and . . . practically inexplicable" sometimes.

This recalls the oft quoted way that Winston Churchill put it in a broadcast to the British people shortly after the outbreak of World War II:

"I cannot forecast to you the action of Russia. It is a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma."

'Ten Million Fellow Americans Are Victims Of Heart Disease; Let's Defeat This Killer!'

New York, N.Y.—One by one, the great diseases are being conquered. The day before yesterday it was tuberculosis; yesterday it was polio. Yet heart disease, the chief killer of them all, still caused 53 per cent of all deaths at all ages in 1955.

There are 10 million sufferers from heart disease. Five hundred thousand of these are schoolchildren.

Perhaps my keen interest in February, Heart Month, will be understood if I say that it was just three years ago that the last attempt via medication to stave off death from heart disease failed for me. Almost too late that spring, a brand new, dramatic and miraculous operation restored me to life, hope and health.

Today there are a hundred thousand persons whose lives were saved by heart surgery. And we are all grateful, especially the 2,000 of us united in a national organization called "Mended Hearts."

All of us were saved (just as was our President) because someone rang a doorbell. The answer gave to a local heart fund; this in turn supported local heart research.

Generous hearts mean living hearts.

Clayton Citizen Wants Atlanta Airport Taxed

Jonesboro—In a recent editorial you said the future growth of the Atlanta Airport depends on what the Clayton County representatives decided to do with the bill to levy taxes on the part of the Atlanta Airport in Clayton County.

I am sure this bill should pass. We have two able and well-qualified men in Clayton to represent sent all of Clayton County and therefore I don't think that you or Mayor Hartsfield should insist upon our representatives withdrawing this bill.

Speaking of taxes, every landowner in the county has taxes to pay, so why shouldn't the airport be taxed?

I agree with the person from Fitzgerald who said if the airlines wish to expand, let them foot the bill and not the citizens of Atlanta. And surely not Clayton County.

I hope that all of the fair-minded legislators will go along with this bill.

Sen. Talmadge Agrees With Soil Bank Stand

Washington, D.C.—Your editorial of Feb. 6, "Questions on Soil Bank Are Pertinent, Timely," expresses my sentiments exactly and I want to thank you for it.

You may be assured that I intend to pursue this fight for justice for our farmers in Georgia and the South. While I am aware of the political odds of getting things done, I cannot believe that fair-minded legislators will allow such conditions to continue to exist when they are fully apprised of the facts.

I am counting on you for advice and support in this matter.

Cartersville—I read with much interest the letter from E. M. Ivey in regard to the Old Locomotive Memorial. I am in a position to see how much a plaque is needed in the railroad pass at Old Allatoona.

I now own a piece of land and a cottage on the site of the Allatoona Depot. My daughter and her family own and live in the old Clayton house, now known as the Morgan house.

We have many people stop to see the house and read the memorial marker of the Battle of Allatoona, which is in the yard. I would be so glad to be able to show one of the old locomotives in the pass.

I do sincerely hope this engine can be obtained and put on display.

When Survival Was the Goal

To keep up these days one needs a secretary for initials. Atlanta has just enjoyed its annual WOTY festivities. WOTY means Woman of the Year. Of course it does.

Comes now the time to pick the TOTY. That stands for Teacher of the Year. And what a teacher stands for—well, that is something else.

The Gwinnett County Education Assn. announced the GCEA's TOTY the other day at a time when I was among those present. She is Mrs. Blanche Whitely Wilbanks, 6th grade teacher at Dacula. Anyone who just goes in a room full of 6th graders deserves a medal.

I like what the Gwinnett Teacher of the Year's principal said about her:

"She seems to have the complete cooperation of students in the classroom and on the school grounds. She has a progressive education philosophy and the ability to make others feel important. She is sincerely interested in others."

Mrs. W. will now compete with other county winners in the Ninth Congressional District for the district title. The district winners come to the GCEA convention as candidates for Georgia Teachers of the Year.

This commendable program is sponsored by the chambers of commerce, at the local, district and state levels.

The TOTY project reminded me that in 1898 my mother started teaching in a one-room school for $40 a month. She rode a bicycle five miles each way to get there. The season before the students had thrown the man teacher out the window.

In those days the Teacher of the Year was the one who survived the school term.

Mother survived.

JEST FOR TODAY: Charles Goe, preacher and teacher at Grayson in Gwinnett, was telling the one about the inebriate who went to the doctor. "Nothing wrong with you except you're drunk," said the M. D. "You're a victim of alcoholism."

"But I can't tell my wife that," said the patient.

"Tell her you've got syncope," the doctor suggested.

The drunk looked up the word. The dictionary said "irregular movement from bar to bar."

And I like the way J. W. Benefield, president of the GCEA, reported the vote on a motion before the house. "The weak eyes have it," he said.

Fragments of a Day Linger in Memory

Some weeks nothing happens. There is a sense of waiting, of time standing still, the hint of joy and sorrow still to come. And so, I guess, pass most of our days on earth. But something lingers in the mind from every one, and each day in its own way brings its memory. And what are these fragments of things seen and felt that in reflection the mind recalls?

Sunday afternoon and a father, a working man craggy of face and rough of hand, bringing his three children, two little boys and a little girl to the quiet chapel to be baptized, and the look on the face of the dean, as with gentle hands he poured the water on each wondering head and welcomed each into the church. . . . The faith and trust of the very young . . . and the great courage of the very old. . . . Battle Hill Haven and the smell of disinfectant, and old people staring with blank eyes into a future that will hold nothing of joy for them ever again. . . . But one grand old lady, with her hair done up in a twisty bun in the fashion of long ago, with a twinkle in her eye and laughter in her voice, as she talks to her visitors in the tiny room she may never leave again. . . .

Piedmont Hospital and the fine sensitive hands of a great surgeon, that had helped and healed the hurts of others for half a century, quiet on the white sheets of a hospital bed, dependent now on the healing skill of other, younger men. . . .

Monday morning and the freshness of spring in the air and the warmth of spring and the jon-quils glowing. And a fine big collie, fawn colored with a snow-white ruff, trotting out of the woods and up to me and squatting to put out a paw to shake, and then rising and trotting on without looking back. I'd never seen him before and he'd never seen me, but I don't think that I met a more elegant gentleman all that day. . . .

Valentine's Day and the envelope by my plate at breakfast. And the air of quiet expectancy broken by snickers . . . and the derisive message. . . . "They said you weren't fit to sleep with the pigs, but I took up for you. I told them you were, too!" "Guess who?" But on the back the healing apology scrawled in a child-like hand. "We're just kidding. You're the best Pop we ever had. . . ."

Friday and the red bird at the feeding station and the cat creeping from behind the camellia bush. . . . and the sudden flurry of gray fur and crimson feathers, and the swift departure of the cat, with a tiny red demon pecking furiously at its head. . . .

So passed the week, with its glint of light and shadow, of laughter and sorrow mingling in the ever-clinging mosaic of our days.

Charles L. Allen

The Power of Faith Makes a Difference

How does faith heal? There are many answers and for one let us begin with a definition of faith: "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen" (Hebrew 11:1). In reference to healing, that means that though you are sick you hope to be well; in spite of your illness you believe in health.

The architect gains strength for long, tedious drawing because he pictures in his mind the completed cathedral. Columbus had strength to overcome opposition, to keep on sailing west in spite of conditions which would have caused almost any person to give up and quit, because in his mind he pictured land ahead.

Before any sick person can ever be well, he must picture health in his mind and believe it can be accomplished. That is faith. There is a story of the barber courting the librarian in a small town. For years the folks of the community had watched as each afternoon he would come by the library to walk home with her.

The town was concerned and felt it would be a good marriage, but the barber could never quite get enough courage to ask the all-important question. Then one day a dashing, romantic-type salesman moved into the community. He went one day to borrow a book, and, as often happens, he became more interested in the librarian than in the book.

More and more he was dropping around to borrow books and one afternoon the librarian told the barber she would be busy that night. She began being busy a lot of nights. The barber became worried. The entire town began to talk. The barber decided to talk the matter over with his friend, the druggist.

He explained to the druggist how much he loved the girl, how he wanted to marry her, but how his courage failed when it came time to ask her. The druggist explained that he could fix him a capsule that would be just what the barber needed. The capsule was made and the druggist warned him that it would act powerfully about 15 minutes after taking.

That night he was to see the librarian. He took the capsule as he started to her house. By the time he got there his courage had so developed that he rushed in, grabbed the librarian by the arm and firmly announced, "Come on, we're going to get married." And they did.

A few days later he said to the druggist, "That was the most powerful capsule I ever took. What was in it?" The druggist smiled and quietly replied, "Three things—first, a gelatin capsule; second, some sugar; third, the belief you could do it."

The third ingredient was the one that mattered. Belief or faith is usually the ingredient that makes the difference between success and failure—between being well and being sick.

Secrecy Blackens Wilson's Fair Ideal

WASHINGTON—The ideal of "open covenants of peace, openly arrived at" was expressed by Woodrow Wilson during the first month of the Conference of Versailles that met outside of Paris to arrange the peace after World War I. That was a splendid objective—to let the people of the world know what the diplomats were up to.

Wilson was frustrated in that objective, even as he was frustrated later by the U. S. Senate when it defeated the League of Nations embodied in the Treaty of Versailles. For we learned gradually in the years following Versailles about all sorts of secret treaties among our allies, Britain, France and Italy, rearranging the map of Europe.

In the interlude between World Wars I and II, idealists in our country started sporadic movements to let the people know about foreign policy. Once again we heard "open covenants, openly arrived at."

Then came World War II and with it various conferences among us and our allies, such as at Quebec, Cairo, Tehran, Yalta and some after the war. Again the curtain was lowered discreetly and we have been learning in the years since about this and that secret agreement.

Then came the cold war with Russia. The screen of secrecy not only was drawn over many of our dealings with our allies so that Soviet Russia should not know what we were up to, but Russia pulled down across Middle Europe what Winston Churchill called "the Iron Curtain" between herself and the West.

Meanwhile there was another development about which the greatest secrecy was kept, both on our side of the Iron Curtain and on Russia's—the A-bomb and its successors, including the H-bomb.

Airplane Crash Lands Here; Pilot Flies Away for Illinois

An Illinois businessman made a safe "belly landing" Sunday at the Fulton County Airport after his plane developed mechanical trouble on a takeoff from Jacksonville, Fla.

The pilot, Hunter C. Moody, 40, departed for his home in Decatur, Ill., in another plane following the emergency landing.

Richard T. Aderhold Jr., airport manager, and C. C. Gilham, manager of an air service, said Moody was flying a four-passenger Beech Bonanza.

"When I flipped the landing gear switch," Moody told them, "the 'elbow' that holds the nose of the ship up broke. I heard the noise of it breaking, and I knew it had broken while the landing gear was coming up."

"I headed for Atlanta," and radioed the Park air field at Marietta to notify you I would be coming in for an emergency landing."

Aderhold said the airport received Moody's message, and was ready for his arrival with crash and fire equipment.

"He slid in on the north-south runway, which is turf," Aderhold said. "He made a good 'belly landing,' and the only damage to the plane was to the propeller, a piece of which broke off as he was landing with his wheels up."

Moody had a twin engine plane at the airport, and took off in this. The other plane was left for repairs, Gilham said. Moody is head of a manufacturing firm.

Put Quality First, Urges Educator

The small liberal arts college must stress "quality of teaching" above everything else, the executive director of the Danforth Foundation said here Sunday.

Dr. Kenneth I. Brown, participating in 90th anniversary ceremonies at Morehouse College, said the foremost requirement of the small college "in times of change" is quality and discipline in teaching.

"There is no use crowding five students into the place of three. If all five must receive an inferior brand of education as a result," he said. He added, however, that gradual enlargement of enrollments is to be desired.

"Intelligence is not the only thing we should emphasize," he said. "We must also concentrate on quality of personality and motivation. We must gear ourselves to producing men of general knowledge, men with wisdom and leadership qualities."

Three other "roles" of the small liberal arts college listed by Brown were:

1. To discover and encourage special strengths and differences in each college, so it may make its own unique contribution.
2. To find and emphasize the "academic community" both on the campus and in the surrounding town or city—to create a "togetherness" among those engaged in a common search for ideas and understanding.
3. To formulate and encourage ways of breaking down social tensions based on "ignorance and brutishness."

Brown spoke at convocation exercises held in Sale Hall Chapel at Morehouse.

Moody's anniversary events include an address by Howard University president, Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, at 9 a.m.; a ground-breaking ceremony for the projected physical education and health building at 3:30 p.m., and a founder's day banquet at 8 p.m. Dr. John W. Davis, president emeritus of West Virginia State College, will be speaker at the banquet.

Stage Here Largest in Dixie for TV

The largest television sound-stage in the South will be dedicated at the Protestant Radio and TV Center here in ceremonies Monday and Tuesday.

John M. Outler Jr., general manager of WSB and WSB-TV, will speak at the center's annual banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday.

WSB is one of the 39 stations which broadcast the first radio program produced by the center in 1946 and is one of the 28 stations which have continued regular broadcast of the Protestant Hour. WSB and the other charter stations will receive special citations at the banquet.

Dr. James R. McCain, president emeritus of Agnes Scott College, will speak at dedication ceremonies at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

The dedication program will feature music from the Center's Fellowship Recorded. Hymnal which is now being used by radio stations and by chaplains in Armed Forces Hospitals and chapels throughout the world.

Dr. John M. Alexander, president of the center, will present the new facilities for dedication and the Rt. Rev. Randolph Claiborne, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Atlanta, will lead the prayers of dedications.

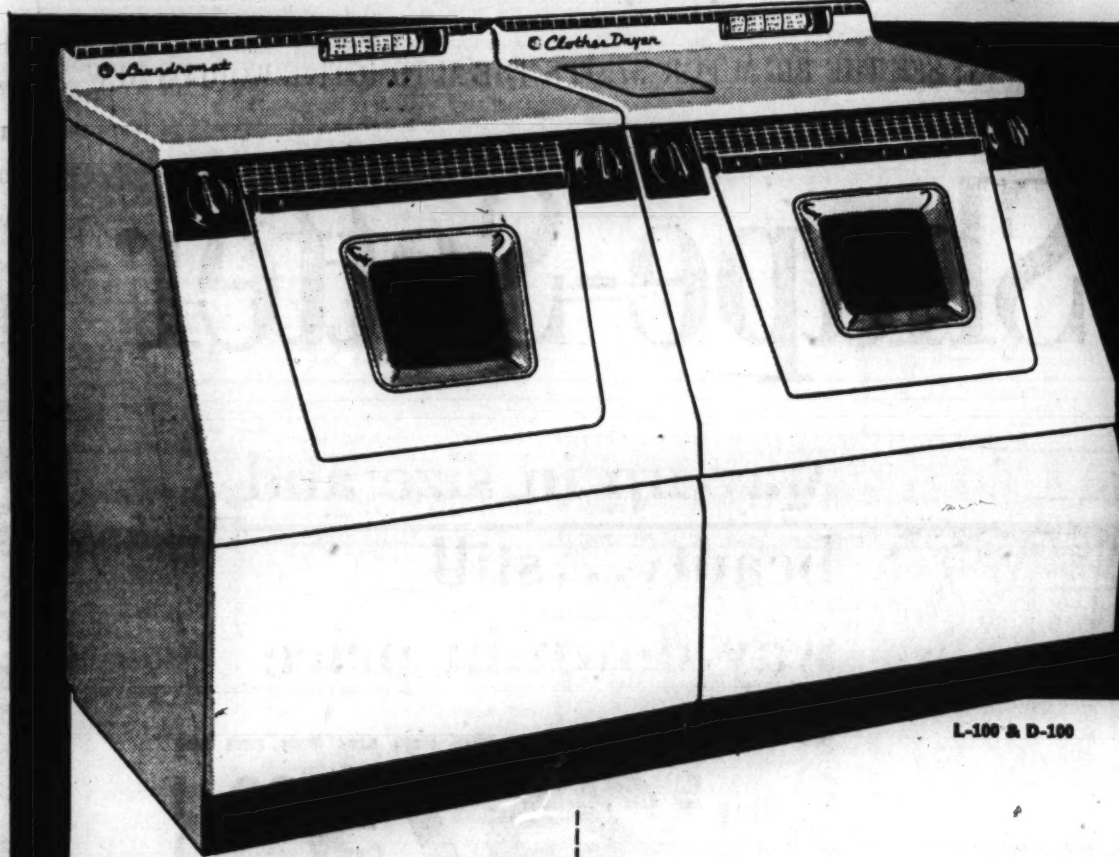

The center is located at 1805 Clifton Rd., N.E.

Hatchett To Preside

J. B. Hatchett, assistant director of the Georgia Board of Corrections, will preside over a discussion of "Realism in Correctional Programs" at the second annual Southern Conference on Corrections at Florida State University, Tallahassee, Feb. 27-28.

Don't settle for less... the Laundromat costs no more! Own the undisputed champ—the only washer that can pass the Sand Test! You've seen the test on TV with your own eyes. Dirty sand is dumped on towels in well-known center-post agitator washers... and in the Revolving Agitator Laundromat. Democratic Council Asks Rights Law er it conforms to the 1956 party platform or not."

Butler refused to interpret the resolution as meaning the council was "prodding members of Congress" into action.

"The council," he suggested, "is advising all Democrats of the policy of our party in these areas."

In response to a further query he said it remained to be "determined how the resolution would be greeted in congressional quarters." The Democratic leadership in Congress has rejected invitations to council membership.

PENDING LEGISLATION

The civil rights legislation that the resolution called for was "pending legislation introduced by Democratic members in their unflagging efforts to eliminate discriminations of all kinds in relation to the right to vote and to engage in gainful occupations; and the other specific discriminations mentioned in the plank on civil rights embodied in Democratic platforms."

The 1956 platform plank mentioned specifically, in addition to discriminations in voting and occupations, those relating to "security of the person" and "education in all publicly supported institutions." The party's convention in Chicago by voice vote refused to demand implementation of Supreme Court decisions outlawing segregation in public schools and banning segregation in transportation. The council's recommendations thus were considered to be within the framework of the 1956 platform.

Butler said he felt the resolution did "no violence" to the Democratic party.

DISAGREE ON ISSUES

"We can disagree on an issue without being disagreeable," he asserted. "That was clear in the council meeting when Mrs. Thomas firmly registered her opposition to any civil rights resolution."

He added that "no member of the Democratic party" would be justifying exception to the resolution as drafted.

Both this resolution and the foreign affairs statement were critical of President Eisenhower. The latter statement commended Democrats in Congress for their "sustained examination" of events that had brought affairs "to this unhappy state."

As Stevenson had done in a speech last night at a $50-a-plate dinner the statement accused the American press, as well as the administration, of failure to report the facts fully.

He Gets the Point

Georgia House Is Girding For Fight on School Funds

stitute a five-man board of state house officials to run the island.

The Jekyll bill is also expected to come up for final action early in the week. In addition to changing the authority membership, the bill would permit the sale of residential and undeveloped commercial lots on the island.

Rep. George L. Smith II of Emanuel County, a leading sponsor of the authority change, predicted the Senate amendment will be approved "overwhelmingly" by the House. Smith's amendment was defeated when offered in the House last Monday but later approved by the Senate with only two dissenting votes.

One other issue which may produce more fireworks during the final week is a strongly backed resolution to investigate timberland holdings by paper and pulp corporations in Georgia.

Administration forces are opposed to the investigation on grounds it might "scare off" a new paper plant that is currently considering locating in the state.

The measure was first rejected in the House State of the Republic Committee. Sponsors of the investigation were defeated 74 to 62 Friday in an effort to override the adverse committee action.

They served notice that they may raise the issue again Monday.

Hawkins, who led the fight against the resolution, said he had suggested to the authors of the resolution that they not push their fight anymore until next session.

"By that time, the matter of the new industry should be settled and I would not then object to the investigation," Hawkins said.

With both the House and Senate facing a huge backlog of legislation, the lawmakers will probably put in some long hours during their final week in Atlanta. There is some possibility of night sessions.

One of the bills still to be acted upon is the administration's $22-million-dollar contingent appropriation bill. The measure has passed the House and is in the Senate Appropriations Committee.

Also still to be acted on are administration-sponsored bills to set up a committee to investigate the NAACP and a resolution calling for the impeachment of six Supreme Court justices. Both are ready for House action.

A Senate-passed bill to forbid interracial sports or social activities is pending before the State of the Republic Committee. One source predicted the measure would not come to a House vote at this session.

Withdraw Troops, Ike Demands of Israelis

noted that Israel would prefer to have the future status of the Gulf of Aqaba and the Gaza Strip definitely settled to its satisfaction, prior to its withdrawal and as a condition thereto.

"But all members of the United Nations are solemnly bound by the charter to settle their international disputes by peaceful means . . . and to refrain from the threat or use of force . . ." he added.

AFTER WITHDRAWAL

"The United Kingdom and France, which occupied portions of Egypt at about the time of Israel's attack upon Egypt last October, withdrew promptly and unconditionally in response to the same United Nations resolution that called for Israeli withdrawal," Eisenhower noted.

Britain and France, the President declared, "deferred to the overwhelming judgment of the world community that a solution of their difficulties with Egypt should be sought after withdrawal and not be made a condition precedent to withdrawal."

"The United States believes Israel should do likewise," Eisenhower stated.

The President pointed out that in a letter to Prime Minister Ben-Gurion last November he urged that "highest priority" be given to Israeli withdrawal from the settlement of the international dispute.

He noted that Ben-Gurion in reply said Israel would withdraw following creation of an international force to move into the disputed areas.

That international force has been created under the United Nations and is within the Suez Canal area, Eisenhower further noted, around Gaza and the Gulf of Aqaba.

The United States is aware, Eisenhower said, of the fact that "Israel has legitimate grievances and should, in all fairness, see a prospect of remedying them."

Eisenhower said this country has made it clear what it would do "after Israel's withdrawal" to help solve the problems.

The United States, he added, believes that actions of the United Nations and the statements of various governments, including the United States, "provide Israel with the maximum assurance it can reasonably expect at this juncture . . ."

RENEWED PLEA

Accordingly, Eisenhower said, the United States has renewed its plea to Israel to comply with repeated demands of the United Nations to withdraw and "rely upon the resoluteness of all friends of justice" to bring about a settlement under principles of "justice and international law" and serve impartially the interests of all in the area.

"This, the United States believes, should provide a greater source of security for Israel than an occupation continued contrary to the overwhelming judgment of the world community," the President declared.

The United States, he concluded, "will strive to remain true to, and support, the United Nations in its efforts to sustain the purposes and principles of the charter as the world's best hope of peace."

70 Are Killed as Fire Rips Through Rest Home for Aged said he first saw smoke coming out of the corner of the 60-year-old building.

CRIES, SCREAMS FOR HELP

Only minutes after the fire started, Stuart said, he could hear cries and screams and repeated calls for help.

"The more water they poured on it the faster it blew," Stuart said. "In only a few moments the flames and smoke beat back rescue efforts."

John J. (Jack) Barada, a 34-year-old hardware store operator and one of the first people to reach the scene, said, "The whole building was in flames in just three or four minutes."

"Strange as it may seem, we heard no screaming from inside. All of the noise was outside the building, from firemen and others shouting orders," he said.

TOO SCARED TO CLIMB

Barada told how he climbed a ladder and helped one woman down and then went back and saw an elderly woman at a window. "She was terrified and wouldn't come through the window," he said. "I had to use some pretty forceful language."

Mrs. Myrtle Gordon, 68, St. Charles, Mo., who walks with crutches, told how she heard running footsteps in the hallway.

"I threw on a robe and grabbed my crutches and went into the hall," she said. "I never walked faster in my life. When I got to the door people were jamming up there and I got shoved out with everyone else."

SMELLED SMOKE

Another inmate, 92-year-old A. Ned Rogers of St. Louis, may owe his life to his keen sense of smell. Shortly before the fire, he thought he smelled smoke. When others ignored his warning, he dressed and left his first-floor room.

Thirty-nine patients in an adjoining building were evacuated safely across the street. Firemen prevented the flames from spreading to that two-story brick structure.

Mrs. O'Sullivan was slightly injured in her fight to save inmates. She helped 10 persons out and when she saw she could not re-enter the home she and others laid mattresses on the ground and told inmates to jump. Several jumped the 20 feet to safety.

O'Sullivan started the nursing home, which he called the Katie Jane, two years ago. He said patients ranged in age from 50 to 99 years.

"I've spent $30,000 trying to fix it up just to avoid something like this," he said.

O'Sullivan explained he had no heating stoves in the building and had heated it by steam from a powerhouse a block away.

Fire departments from nearby communities joined in the rescue work. The fire started about 3:45 p.m.

At the height of the fire, the roof caved in. The fire destroyed both a main building and an annex.

A muffled explosion during the fire shot flames as high as 60 feet. Long smoke clouds could be seen as far as 30 miles away.

The brick building formerly housed the Central Wesleyan College which was closed in 1941. It was turned into an old folks home two years ago.

The fire was reported to have started in a hallway on the first floor just off a dormitory where church services were being held.

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

New York, N. Y. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain—without surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was relieved promptly. And, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

HOW TO GET WELL

Behavior of Old May Have Neurotic, Psychotic Base

By DR. T. R. VANDELLEN

When Grandpa goes berserk, don't blame his hardened arteries. There is a 50-50 chance that he has developed a neurosis or a psychosis has no relationship to the circulation of the brain.

Marked deterioration of the brain, especially after a stroke and in extreme senility, is a different proposition.

Several years ago a group of Californians compared an autopsy of the brains of aged persons who had become mentally incompetent with the brains of an equal number of mentally sound oldsters. No correlation was found between the condition of the arteries and personality disturbances.

This simply means that our senior citizens react to stress, anxiety, and frustration in much the same way as the young and middle-aged.

Another study disclosed that psychiatric disturbances in the aged are not necessarily related to the emotional status of the individual at the prime of life. This would seem to indicate that those who had a mental disorder in earlier years are not more likely to be plagued by the same condition in later life.

A neurosis in an older man or woman usually stems from the problems of aging. These old-timers become tense, nervous, or depressed. New interests and sources of satisfaction bring improvement and so will the tranquilizing drugs.

The situation is more serious when a psychotic depression develops. Associated with the mood change are loss of appetite and feelings of hopelessness and despondency. The old gentleman is tearful, stares into space, does not eat, and cannot sleep.

He claims to be a burden to his family and life offers nothing for him. He is so preoccupied with his internal feelings he is inattentive to those about him and may be regarded as having lost his memory. This type of mental condition requires sanitarium care and shock therapy.

More severe symptoms of senility usually accompany marked deterioration of the brain. Many of these individuals have had large or small strokes.

Emory Dentist Gets Master's at Nebraska

Dr. John S. Pike of Moreland, a graduate of Emory University School of Dentistry, has received his master's degree in children's dentistry from the University of Nebraska dental school. He plans to begin practice March 1 at Chapel Hill, N.C.

Billy Graham

Love of God Is a Normal Experience

QUESTION: Because I am so vitally interested in my church and faith, one of my teachers said it is a sign of abnormality. What did she mean?—P. L.

ANSWER: Your teacher must have confused abnormality with not being average. The average person is not vitally interested in church and in his faith.

There is a vast amount of skepticism and indifference abroad, and for that reason you may appear to that teacher as abnormal. Religious faith is not a sign of abnormality.

Normality has been defined as being unhampered by emotional conflicts, and Jesus gives perfect peace and integration of the personality. Normality has been defined as possessing a capacity for work, and the consecrated Christian certainly is a steward of his time and talents to use them for God.

The most normal person seldom is in possession of any of these qualities to the extent they become ours through God's grace. The question might be asked: Is it normal to reject and deny Jesus Christ who loves you enough to suffer humiliation and death for you? Who is more normal than the one whose life is God's?

End of Army Rule in '58 Set by Argentine Chief

Promises Free Election Before June, Raps Latin Nations Sheltering Peron

By EDWARD A. MORROW
(Copyright 1957 by The New York Times Co.)
BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 17—Provisional President Pedro Eugenio Aramburu announced today that his regime would end not later than June 20, 1958. He said he then would hand over his mandate to a legally elected government.

The president quieted calls by leftist radicals and rightist nationalists for the establishment of a time limit for the "government of the liberating revolution." Both groups have severely criticized the government on the basis of suspicions that it intended to maintain itself in power longer than necessary or that it planned to choose its successor government.

Aramburu made his announcement during a speech in the Patagonian city of Trelew. The speech was broadcast to the nation.

The president began today a seven-day trip to Argentina's southernmost regions. The trip is to include a visit to Tierra del Fuego.

The president's announcement followed a communique issued by three members of the military junta who expressed their determination to stay at the helm of the government with Aramburu until their task had been completed. The ministers of the army, air force and navy said that no sacrifice, "even that of our own lives," would prevent them from fulfilling promises they had made to the country.

They said they were pledged to restore the "free exercise of popular sovereignty" to the nation. Recently a series of events aimed at frustrating this resolve has taken place, the communique added.

CITES PLOTS

"Insidious rumors, plotting within the trade unions and criminal sabotage insensitive to loss of life as well as to the nation's economic recuperation have been promoted by those who hope for a return to those days when they could satisfy their unbridled appetites," the communique declared.

"They seem to have forgotten that the armed forces have taken on the responsibility" of seeing to it that the exile of Juan D. Peron, former dictator, remains permanent, it said.

"WILL NEVER RETURN"

This theme was repeated by Aramburu, who said Argentina could not understand why Latin countries still give haven to an "agonizing" who is trying to destroy his own country to satisfy the most base of instincts.

Aramburu declared: "That monster will never again set foot in Argentina." His reference was to Peron.

However, Aramburu indicated that he was disappointed with Argentina's slow progress in recovering democratic morale.

"We are sure that results would have been greater and better if certain sectors did not demonstrate an incomprehensible lack of understanding of the needs of the hour," he said.

CONFUSION

"Inherited confusion" remains one of Argentina's gravest problems, but his government will live up to its promises, he asserted. He said a decree would be issued soon calling for the election of national and provincial constituent assemblies in July.

Once these have finished revising the constitution, nationwide presidential and congressional elections will be held in time to permit the new government to take over in July, 1958.

There seems to be every indication that the election will be the most hectic and wide-open in Argentina's history. When the time for filing party applications ended last Friday night, 18 parties already had received legal recognition. Twenty-one more applications were under study. At the last minute the appeals court gave legal electoral recognition to the Communist

SON MISSING

Man, Wife Found Shot To Death

WICHITA FALLS, Tex., Feb. 17 (AP)—Police said today someone stood in the doorway of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Parks' bedroom last night and pumped 13 bullets into their bodies.

A statewide pickup order was issued for their son, who was missing.

Mrs. Parks, 34, was found dead near the front door of their home. She had been shot six times.

Parks' body also had been riddled.

Police said 13 empty .22 cartridge cases were found in the doorway of the bedroom.

Wichita County Sheriff Weldon Bailey said the couple's son, James, 16, and the family car were missing. Bailey said he had issued a statewide pickup order for the boy.

No charges were filed.

The boy is the son of Mrs. Parks and was adopted by Parks. Bailey said "quite a lot of money had been taken. Parks' billfold was missing and he's known to carry a bit of money."

The bodies were found this morning by the dead man's brother, G. L. Parks.

Surplus Sale To Reds Is Suggested

Farm Goods Plan Presented to Panel

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—The chairman of a House Appropriations subcommittee on Agriculture today suggested that the United States should sell surplus farm goods to Russia and Soviet satellite countries.

Rep. Whitten (D-Miss.) expressed this view in a report to the Appropriations Committee on a three-week tour he made last fall through Russia and other European countries. He was accompanied by two staff aides.

Whitten pictured the Soviet Union as "a 19th century group of republics attempting to compete in a 20th century world" with agriculture "perhaps the greatest single weakness" of the Iron Curtain economy.

He reported Russian plans for a setup in farm output are running into trouble because of marginal lands, low rainfall, short growing seasons, bureaucratic rigidity and wasteful practices.

Whitten said he saw much corn grown from 5,000 tons of U.S. seed imported last year so the Soviet could meet their own needs.

"It is difficult to understand why we would furnish seed and yet would not sell our surplus corn so as to have Russia dependent on us," he said.

"It might be possible to arrange barter deals whereby surplus commodities could be exchanged for strategic items for stockpiling."

Rains up to the same amount fell around Marathon, west of San Angelo. It has raised hopes that the powder-dry pastures can revive.

Reports from the Rio Grande Valley indicated the entire 40-by-100 mile area had received at least one inch of rain. Some areas reported up to five inches.

Atlantan, 2 Maconites Win Honors at Camellia Show

MACON, Feb. 17 (AP)—An Atlantan, two Maconites and a local garden club took top honors Saturday in the Middle Georgia Camellia Show.

The show's highest award went to Clifford Clarke of Atlanta, who has grown camellias as a hobby for 10 years. Mrs. Jack Colbath, Ike Flateau and the Hill and Dale Garden Club of Macon were the other top winners of the weekend show at Macon.

Clarke exhibited the best flower in the show grown under glass for which he was presented the M. J. Whitman Trophy. He also was named sweepstakes winner.

The awards to Clarke gave him a grand slam. He was top winner in the Birmingham show; had the best bloom in the Atlanta show and was sweepstakes winner here.

The American Camellia Society Saturday night elected Ralph S. Peer of Los Angeles, Calif., president, succeeding Les Marbury of Wilmington, N.C., and voted to hold its 1958 convention in New Orleans on Jan. 30-Feb. 2.

Other officers elected were Hoyt W. Lee, Mobile, Ala.; Dr. J. M. Habel, Suffolk Va., and Milo E. Rowell, Glendale, Calif., vice presidents; T. J. Smith, McRae, treasurer, and Arthur C. Brown, Gainesville, Fla., secretary-editor.

He proposed that the resolution be amended to require the President to obtain agreements "as binding as possible" that the recipients of American arms would not use them for aggressive purposes.

Crown The 'Cats

As they stomp down the stretch in what has been an exciting Southeastern Conference basketball race, Kentucky is bouncing along in its familiar spot in front of the pack. The Wildcats probably will cross the finish line Monday night, and wrap up a title Adolph Rupp didn't expect to win.

The Baron insists he was sincere when he predicted that the current crop might be Kentucky's worst team in 15 years. It hasn't been, of course, and unless Vandy wins Monday night in Lexington, Rupp can place an order for his 17th SEC trophy.

At the outset the alleged experts pegged Kentucky and Vandy as their co-favorites, and that's exactly the way they are coming to the wire. It has been a close and whacky race. Georgia broke on top and, at various points, Auburn, Tulane and Kentucky have nosed ahead. Ironically, the Commodores haven't been atop the standings throughout the trip.

The race, apparently over, was resumed last week when Babe McCarthy's Miss. States nipped the Wildcats, 80-81. As a result of the Starkville shocker, Vandy was afforded another shot at the crown.

Unfortunately for the Commodores, they will be attempting to beard Rupp in his own den in Lexington Monday night, a site where the Baron's teams have lost four games in 14 years.

—Vanderbilt Must Hit or Miss

Vandy is laying all of its chips on the line in this one. If Al Rochelle, Bobby Thym and company can fashion an upset, the Commodores will edge ahead and set the stage for a frantic finish. A Vandy victory, plus an Auburn triumph over Tulane, would dump the Wildcats into a second-place tie with the Plainsmen at 8-3. Vandy would read 9-3.

Kentucky, hitting on over 50 per cent of its shots in the first half, conquered the Commodores, 91-83, in Nashville. Since that time, however, Bob Polk's talented crew has rebounded with five straight conference wins.

In tune-ups for the showdown, the Commodores squeaked past stubborn Tennessee, 69-67. With Ed Beck out of the lineup, the Wildcats demolished Loyola of Chicago, 115-65. Vanderbilt isn't one of the four teams which have whipped Kentucky at home in the last 14 years, and the Commodores aren't likely to join that elite list.

Balance has been the key factor in the success of the top three teams in the league. Kentucky's Johnny Cox, who boasts a 19-point average, is the lone representative of the three clubs among the scoring leaders.

Ole Miss, Miss. State and Alabama have supplied the big guns pointwise. Joe Gibbon, who is revising the Rebel record book, hiked his average to 29.12 at the expense of Tennessee and Georgia. He erupted for 43 points in a losing effort against the Vols and bombed Georgia baskets for 41 markers Saturday night.

—No Longer a Football Orphan

Bailey Howell, the fabulous sophomore from State, canned 101 points during the week. He engineered the Kentucky upset by pouring in 37 and claimed 20 rebounds in a startling exhibition which left the customers goggle-eyed. He hit for 35 against Tampa, 29-against Florida to complete a banner week.

Howell and Ashmore move on Athens Monday night, and Georgia's Red Lawson isn't excited about having the Maroons as guests. McCarthy's giant-killers number victories over Kentucky, Vandy and Tulane in their 6-4 record. They had won five straight before Florida slipped them a mickey.

The jumbled Southeastern Conference standings and the record number of stars provides proof that basketball has grown up in the league. For years the conference presented Kentucky and 11 other teams.

But now, as various coaches have pointed out, any team in the league appears capable of giving the top team a battle on a given night.

For example, LSU, with 1-9 basement credentials, almost knocked off Kentucky a few weeks ago in Baton Rouge. Tennessee, with a 3-7 chart, frightened Vandy Saturday night. With Jack Kubiszyn back in harness, Alabama bashed Tulane, 72-53, and dashed the Greenies' long-shot hopes of a title.

Georgia Tech has enjoyed its share of prosperity. Coach Whack Hyder's men need only one more victory to tack up a school mark, and they already have authored a new record book for individual achievements.

Basketball is no longer an orphan supported by football gate receipts. Most of the SEC cagers are paying their own way.

Faulk's 279 Breaks LPGA Record by 5

Thomasville Star Captures St. Pete Open; Suggs Second

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Mary Lena Faulk today won the $5,000 St. Petersburg Women's Open golf tournament by three strokes over Louise Suggs with a 279 that clipped five strokes off the Ladies Professional Golfers Assn. record for a 72-hole tournament.

Miss Faulk shot a brilliant final-round 68, three under men's par and six under women's par for the 6,116-yard Sunset course.

Yet she owed her victory largely to errors by Miss Suggs, who was four over par on the last two holes.

Suggs' 282 also broke the old LPGA tournament record of 284, set by Marlene Bauer Hagge in the Mile High Open at Denver last year.

Betty Jameson tied the old mark in finishing third today.

Suggs and Jameson had entered the final round tied for the lead at 210, with Miss Faulk third at 211. After Miss

SEC PLAYER OF WEEK HIGH-FLYING HOWELL GIVING PLANES THE AIR, FOES WORKS

By PAUL ATKINSON

Starkville, Miss., is a quiet, small Deep South town. It has no airport . . . no big city vices.

For that reason, the institution of higher learning situated there—Mississippi State College—was able to obtain the basketball services of the Constitution's Southeastern Conference Player of the Week, Bailey Howell.

But before the story is told of how Howell became a Maroon, let's first recount his week's accomplishments:

The brilliant 6-7 sophomore, in three games, totaled 101 points, for a neat 33.7 points per-game mark. This, broken down, was 37 against Kentucky in a prime 80-81 Southeastern Conference upset, 35 against Tampa in a 113-87 walk and 29 in a losing 80-80 effort at the University of Florida.

Most of all, he earned this week's honors on that Kentucky game. His performance was superb. He hit 12 of 17 floor shots and 13 of 15 free throws, besides grabbing 20 rebounds.

The win over Kentucky was State's first since back in 1923.

"You can't ask for a better player," Maroon coach James H. (Babe) McCarthy smiles. "He does everything. If he didn't score, he would be valuable just for his rebounding."

Howell had always held high promise, even as a gangling Tennessee prep school youth at Middleton. In fact, he was an All-America and naturally with the 1,037 points he scored his senior season, there were quite a few scouts on his doorstep.

One was Babe McCarthy, the soft-spoken, self-styled "country boy."

McCarthy, Sunday in Athens for the Maroons' Monday game with Georgia, recalled the first day he saw Howell.

"It was a snowy day in January," he said.

"I had just been told that I would get the State job. My brother-in-law and I went up to Middleton to see Bailey."

"Middleton is not large. Neither is Starkville or Baldwin, my hometown, so I guess we all spoke the same language."

Two other schools were hot after Howell. One was Memphis State, an up-and-coming big-time cage power that could have used a drawing card like Howell.

But there were disadvantages hung on these. Kentucky flew to most of its games. And Howell didn't like to fly.

Memphis State is located in a large city. And Middleton is very unlike that metropolis. Starkville is, however, very much like it.

"That left State and Starkville," said McCarthy.

Howell averaged 27.2 points per game as a freshman and led the Maroon frosh to a glittering 18-2 won-lost mark.

Howell has already written new records into the rebound books with 34 in a single game and 395 for the season. Over the season he has scored 525 points, a 25-point average.

The honor roll:

JIM ASHMORE, Miss. State—Two-time Player of the Week had 24 points and brilliant floor game against Kentucky, came back for 34 at Tampa and 27 in Florida loss.

BOBBY THYM, Vanderbilt—Brilliant forward broke up Tulane zone defense Monday in a 71-55 win with 21 points and grabbed 12 in a key 60-42 victory of Tennessee Saturday.

GARY FULLER, Georgia Tech—Hit 18 points came in clutch spot Thursday to pull Jackets from behind and get 67-65 decision of Georgia.

HENRY CARANIS, Georgia—Rolled to 31 points, a career high in 90-91 loss to Ole Miss Saturday, and had 10 vital points in heart-breaking 67-65 defeat by Tech.

JIM FULLER, Alabama—Big center hit 14 in 66-65 edge of Florida Monday and had 23 points, 20 rebounds in 72-53 surprise dambombing of Tulane.

THIS WEEK'S SCHEDULE: Monday—Vanderbilt at Kentucky, Mississippi State at Georgia, Mississippi at Tulane, Tulane at Auburn, Louisiana State at Alabama, Tennessee at Georgia Tech.

Tuesday—Mississippi State at Louisiana State, Mississippi at Tulane.

Saturday—Mississippi State at Tulane, Alabama at Kentucky, Florida at Vanderbilt, Auburn at Tennessee, Mississippi at Louisiana State, Georgia at Georgia Tech.

The victory was worth $4,250 of the $15,000 purse, second paid $2,450, third $1,500, fourth $800 and fifth $700.

Owens, the second man to better 100 miles an hour in the NASCAR races, surpassed the 101.32 m.p.h. Tim Flock of Atlanta made yesterday in the race for convertibles when he became the first to hit the century mark.

The 101.5 m.p.h. pace by Owens also bettered Flock's record of 92.854 for this race set in 1955.

Driving a 317-horsepower 1957 Pontiac, Owens duelled Paul Goldsmith of St. Clair Shores, Mich., for the lead through 31 of the 39 laps over the 4.1-mile course.

Then Goldsmith's 1957 Chevrolet developed mechanical trouble and he had to drop out, giving Owens an easy victory.

He finished two miles ahead of Johnny Beauchamp of Harlan, Iowa, who was second in a 270-horsepower 1957 Chevrolet.

Ponty Flock of Atlanta was third in a Chevrolet, Buck Baker of Charlotte, N.C. fourth in a Chevrolet and Marvin Panch of Daytona Beach, fifth in a Ford.

Then came, in order, Bill Lutz of Louisville, Ky., in an Oldsmobile, Curtis Turner of Roanoke, Va., in a Ford, Speedy Thompson of Charlotte, N.C., in a Chevrolet, Rex White of Silver Spring, Md., in a Chevrolet and Charlie O'Connell of Norfolk, Va., in a Plymouth.

Vanderbilt Monday night rides into basketball's "Death Valley," where the bleached hopes of Southeastern Conference title-seekers have been stacked 16 seasons high by the relentless men of Baron Adolph Rupp.

Coach Bob Polk's Commodores, coasting on the crest of a five-game league winning streak, join Kentucky for the crown at Lexington.

Rupp's troops will be going after their 17th championship since the SEC was formed in 1933. Vanderbilt will be trying to keep its title hand in, and also has visions of administering the fifth licking that the Wildcats have sustained on home hardwood in 14 years.

The battle being abroad, most of the Commodore rosters will miss it. It will be difficult to tell, however, whether they'll be cheering louder for Vanderbilt in Nashville, Tenn., or Auburn, Ala.

Kentucky stands 2-1 in the league chase, Vanderbilt 2-3 and Auburn 7-3. A triumph for Vandy obviously would also be one for the Plainsmen. Coach Joel Eaves' surging sophomores have worries of their own, though, in Tulane Monday.

The Green Wave, rebounding from solid losses to Vanderbilt and Alabama, will be in no mood for another defeat at Auburn. However, the game means more SEC-wise to the Tigers, and they'll be tough.

Meanwhile at Athens, Coach Red Lawson finds his problems doubled since Saturday. And when you start multiplying Joe Gibbon, the result is more point-making skill than most folks see this side of the National Basketball Assn.

"Ole Miss had one tremendous boy," Lawson said Sunday. "State has two. Every game, though, you've got to get ready for tremendous people in this league." Tremendous talent-wise, meant the Georgia mentor.

"Gibbon's the most difficult player to set up a defense against. I've run across in coaching," Lawson continued.

"Henry Cabaniss played one of his finest offensive games for us. He scored 31 points—most he ever made in a varsity game—and got 17 rebounds. We had 95 good shots, but just weren't hitting."

Capt. Curtis Gleaton, apparently victorious in his bout with a virus, should be ready to go full steam Monday against Mississippi State. However, guard Ray Allen, whose 30 points and 15.4 average pace the Bulldogs, may not be able to go at all.

"Allen hurt his leg on a drive, and I've never seen a charley horse get well overnight," lamented Lawson. "Don Hartfield will probably start in his spot if Allen's out, and I've been toying with the idea of using Harold Krafchick. He's got quick reflexes."

About the double-trouble taking over where Gibbon's 43 points left off.

"State's got Bailey Howell and Jim Ashmore," said Lawson. Ashmore's averaging 28.2 points a game and Howell 25, 101 coming in three games last week.

Cabaniss will guard 6-6 Howell, and Fred Edmondson, who stuck so closely to Bud Blenker's side, draws Ashmore. That's a night's work for any pair.

Coach Babe McCarthy's Maroons lost to Florida Saturday, but have won six of their last seven SEC games. They stand 8-4 in the league. Georgia is 4-6 SEC-wise and 8-12 overall.

Game-time is 8 p.m. If Auburn loses its last four games, a rather unlikely prospect, Eaves' 14-season winning streak still stands.

"Rex Frederick hit 11 of 15 field goal attempts in getting his 30 against LSU," Eaves said. "The entire team played good ball, and we were able to substitute freely. All 12 boys scored. That gave our starters some extra rest for Tulane. And they'll need it."

REVIEWING THE AA CROWN CHASE

Darrahs, Slayden, Hatcher Provided Thrills in '56, Who'll It Be in '57?

By CHARLIE ROBERTS

Some 200 of Georgia's most dynamic "courtiers" will be going to court for four days next week, Wednesday through Saturday. They're going to contest a case about a kingdom. And after the trials are done, the verdicts are in, the case dismissed, one group will swagger home with the crown emblematic of Georgia's Class AAA high school basketball championship. But history says the arguments will continue.

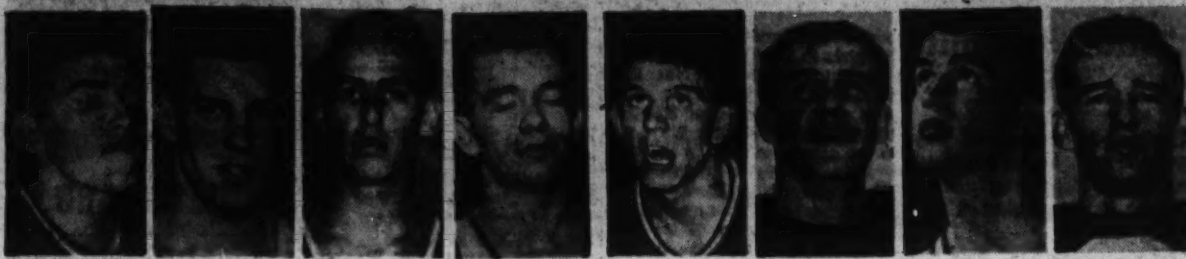

They'll make some more history by fighting the case for the first time in the vast expanse that is W. A. Alexander Memorial Coliseum at Georgia Tech, under sponsorship of The Atlanta Constitution for the fifth year.

These contestants in the 56th annual GAAA tournament will not only be hard-pressed by the force of the moment but hard-pressed to match thrills provided by the all-star cast of 1956. Those hardwired warriors had the cheers of the mob reverberating through the City Auditorium from shrill starting whistle to blaring closing buzzer.

This was the year that will be envied in tourney annals as the one in which Columbus Baker's short boys beat the long boys at their own game and became the only school other than Lanier, Savannah and old Atlanta Tech High to capture the crown more than once. Albani, Lanier did it 16 times.

It will be remembered as one in which the one-point foul shot was mightier than the two-point field goal, an official scorer created as much talk as the court stars, the winner was more disgruntled than the loser and the winning coach made the same post-tournament speech for the third straight year, although Bubba Ball's "No Comment" would hardly make Aristotle come back from the dead to defend his laurels.

Before the tournament had run its riotous course, some 11,000 fans were to witness the heroics in person, thousands of others to catch the action by rocking chair and WSB-TV.

Tommy Darrah, Vance Rankin, Walt Rankin, Clyde Mynatt, Wayne Copeland, Doug Hatcher, Carlos Mobley, Bobby Gene Harty.

Two "highboys" saved the Northside cause 11 hours after two "long shots" proved North Fulton saviors on eight-game opening day. The 23 and 17-point sniping of 6-5 Steve Snipes shot down Russell's defending champs, 66-62. Long-shooting Vance Rankin and Clyde Mynatt squeaked North Fulton past Dalton in overtime, 70-77. Rankin punished the nets with 36 points, 3 long ones coming in overtime. Mynatt fired from afar for 26 points, 12 in the third quarter.

The ruthlessness of Region One, which was to provide the two finalists, was noted when it sent Savannah's three entries back home after only one night's hotel bill had been paid. Only Richmond Academy prevented a complete humiliation of 2-AA entries with a 56-49 tramp past Albany as 6-6 Wayne Richards stuffed 17 into the mesh.

Jordan rode Herbie Slayden's 25-point bridge to a 66-52 upset of pre-tourney co-favorite Savannah as the Jackets threw a defensive blanket around Walt Rankin and Carlos Mobley. LaGrange blundered Commercial, 80-62, with 38 and 25-point barrages by after the Wolves had scared the short pants off the Jackets. Individual brilliance of Richards upon Richmond past Northside, 64-55, his output being 33 points, his intake off the boards being considerable.

Baker shot North Fulton dizzy in the first half and held off the comebacking Bulldogs for a 55-48 nod. Glenn Barnes was the big Bulldog killer-offer with 19 points, and Tommy and Gordon Darrah swished net with 22 and 10. That 31-16 halftime deficit made the Buckhead cause futile.

Black Friday followed last Thursday for Atlantans and Augustans as Jordan finished Murphy, 70-66, amid a storm of controversy. And the Darrah brothers put a 60-56 throttle on Richmond. Tommy was a 24-pointer, Gordon a 19-er as ailing Richards was slowed to a mere 15. Billy Anderson, Shellnut and Slayden drove home 20, 18 and 17—but six Anderson points dropped through after he had committed a fifth foul. When it was discovered the storm of controversy broke, but Jordan was safely in out of the rain. Hatcher tucked in 18, McRee 14 and Moore 12 for Murphy.

After Murphy vented its fury on Richmond, 90-75, for third place as Hatcher and McRee gunned in 38 and 30 points, the second All-Columbus finals in history was on before 5,000 screamers. Tommy Darrah was unscathed here of the 50-50 Baker conquest although he was gathering splinters on the bench when the end came.

The lean, 6-2 wizard on this team that averaged just under six feet pumped in 31 points and all except one Baker field goal Jordan won the final goal battle, 13-10, but the free throw was king this night.

Shellnut stole the ball as the end neared, raced a red-faced clock, missed a crisp. Slayden followed up. The ball rolled around the rim and out. The buzzer sounded. Those were the thrills of 1956. Coming up, the 1957 stemwinder.

Pancho Beats Aussie Despite Ailing Hand

Injury May Force Gonzales To Quit Pro Tennis Tour

Compiled From Constitution Wire Reports

A painful blister that may force Pancho Gonzales to give up the tour couldn't prevent his blistering Ken Rosewall in the little Aussie's American professional tennis debut Sunday.

"That old blister on my racket hand popped again yesterday and started bleeding heavily," the 28-year-old pro champion from Los Angeles said. "If it doesn't get better, I'll have to quit the tour."

Gonzales, playing near perfect tennis despite his injury, smashed Rosewall, 6-2, 6-4, for an 8-4 lead in the series which began in Australia.

Rosewall teamed with Dinny Pails, veteran Aussie pro to beat Gonzales and Pancho Segura of Ecuador in the doubles, 6-4, 8-6. Pails and Segura dueled to a 9-9 draw in the other singles match.

Gonzales' immediate plans call for the use of a padded racket hand.

BASEBALL—George Sisler, 63, special assistant to the field manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Saturday night underwent an emergency abdominal operation at Presbyterian Hospital in Pittsburgh. Doctors say he's progressing satisfactorily. . . . Homer-hitting Dale Long signed his 1957 Pirate pact.

BOXING—Welter champion Carmen Basilio is a 3-1 favorite to whip ex-champ Johnny Saxton at Cleveland Friday night in their third title battle. Other bouts pit middleweight titlist Gene Fullmer and Ernie Duran.

St. Louis Hawks Squeeze By Lakers in Overtime

Fort Wayne, Philadelphia, Syracuse Also Triumph in Sunday's NBA Action

Compiled From Wire Reports

The St. Louis Hawks squeezed out a 118-115 overtime victory over the home-sitting Minneapolis Lakers Sunday and moved into second place in the National Basketball Association's Western Division.

In other games, Fort Wayne's Pistons, Western leaders, whipped the Rochester Royals, 104-85; Syracuse topped the Boston Celtics, 116-106, and Philadelphia dropped the New York Knicks, 123-115.

Only Rochester was unable to get over the 100 mark in the lively action on the four fronts.

The Laker-Hawk skirmish wound up in a squabble with officials, popcorn boxes, coaches, players and fans on the floor. A total of 82 fouls and four technicals

Bowl-Trotters Lasso Steers

Jimmy Morris scored 23 points and Joe Helms bagged 12 to lead the Bowl-Trotters past Seven Steers, 57-41, Sunday afternoon.

The Sports Arena Blues beat the Tomboys, 45-32, behind Margaret Collins 15 points. Mal Stainbrook pitched in 12. Faye Williams scored 14 for the losers.

DIAMOND DIARY DITTMER MOVES ON —BUT BENCH STAYS

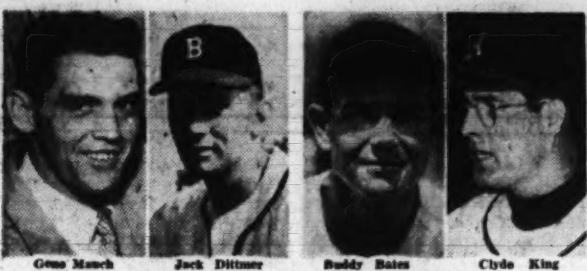

By AL THOMY

Things aren't always what they seem, as Jack Dittmer, one-time Atlanta Cracker second baseman, should soon discover. He homesteaded on the Milwaukee bench three years after the Braves picked up Dittmer on the market. Three frustrating, fidgety years. Then last week the Braves vacated his room on the bench when they slid him past the league line to Detroit of the American family.

"I feel as though I'm getting a brand new start," said Dittmer. "I made a lot of friends in Milwaukee and the fans always treated me fine, but it's been pretty discouraging sitting on the bench the last three years. There's a chance I'll get more opportunity at Detroit and that's all I ask."

Detroit director of player personnel, John McAlle, said the Tigers had been after Dittmer for a year. "Dittmer didn't have much chance behind O'Connell," said McAlle. "But he was still a keyed-up sort of player. We don't expect him to beat out Frank Bolling (the Mobile flash who was formerly stationed at Ft. McPherson here), but it will be nice to have Dittmer around."

Seems like a change of bench scenery for Dittmer, from behind O'Connell to behind Bolling. But, then, a change of parks is probably a relief to a man who's warmed the Milwaukee bench for three years. At Hollywood, ex-Cracker skipper Clyde King inherits Paul Hest, the $100,000 pitching bust who's now trying a first base-outfield comeback in the Pirate organization. Maybe some of the King magic will rub off. . . . Ted Abernathy, another ex-Ft. McPherson athlete, is the only underhanded pitcher in the majors today, says his manager, Chuck Dressen of the Washington Senators. "He has grown from a boy to a man," added Dressen, "and should help us this season." . . . And did you notice? Atlanta managers, past and present, are a golfing lot. Gene Mauch, class of '53, tied for second in the Hot Sox League tournament in California with a 73, and Buddy Bates, the incumbent, had a 76. For—goodness sakes. . . . Mauch, incidentally, is currently tabbed the starting second baseman for the Boston Red Sox. . . . Add Red Sox news: Heywood Sullivan, ex-Florida passing whiz, is given a good chance of unseating (unsuattering?) Sammy White as Boston catcher this spring. . . . Colorful Billy Reynolds of the Ponce de Leon outfield says the majors is his aim. "Don't care which team, just the majors," he says.

Word from Milwaukee is that Corky Valentine, 16-7 Cracker right-hander, doesn't figure to be a regular if he makes the squad, and they say first baseman Buck Riddle is a year away. . . . Paul Richards believes the catching of big Gus Triandos, former Birmingham first baseman, will make or break the Baltimore Orioles. . . . Karl Spooner, one-time Brooklyn rookie sensation who re-learned the pitching alphabet at Macon last summer, is still the question mark of the Dodger staff. . . . Former Nashville outfielder Nell Chrysler hit a sparkling .190 in the Cuban league. . . . When Dept.: Bob Wellman, veteran South Georgia Class D manager, was the top slugger in the Occidental League with 13 home runs. "I never try for homers," says Wellman. "I just meet the ball." Well, how do you do it? . . . Quote: "Only thing wrong with Nashville baseball is that there hasn't been a concerted organization to sell attendance at games to the public."—Gabe Paul, Cincinnati general manager. . . . Eddie Gleason, general manager of the Birmingham Barons of the Southern Assn., spoke to the state convention of Alabama Hardware Dealers. On fumigation, no doubt. . . . John Mattel, Dartmouth College trainer, is the new medicine man for the Memphis Chicks. A touch of Ivy in the South. . . . J. G. Taylor Spink, Sporting News Publisher, advanced a book, "The Real Babe Ruth," to Julio Meza, who's trying for the $64,000-Peso Question in Mexico. He's the "Myrt Power" of Mexico.

BERMAN THE STRONG MAN

SEC Word From Montgomery: LSU Bengals Loaded—Again

By BERT PRATHER

Rival Southeastern Conference track coaches won't have to wait until the outdoor season, six weeks hence to know who they'll have to beat in this year's championships at Birmingham, Ala., May 17 and 18.

They got the answer pretty straight Saturday night in the first annual Coliseum Relays at Montgomery, Ala. And it came no surprise.

Coach Al Moreau and his Louisiana State Tigers are loaded again. Competing against SEC rivals, Auburn, Georgia Tech, Alabama, Georgia and Mississippi State and non-SEC foes Clemson and Florida State on the classic dirt track of the huge Alabama State Coliseum, the Bayou Bounders racked up seven firsts to run away with the team trophy. Their winning total was 44.

True, Percy Beard's Florida Gators, current loop champs, were not present at this splendid indoor meet, but it is still hard to conceive of any team outgunning the Tigers this time. They have won 14 SEC crowns to nine for the rest of the conference.

It was not so much the margin of victory that made the Moreau charges impressive but the way they did it. Tommy Dukes, a sophomore, won both the high jump (6 feet), and the broad jump (22-10).

For a fledgling that's a pretty good varsity start. Then there was Harry Carpenter, the SEC 220 and low hurdles champ. Harry ran off and left the field in the 300, though he was shut out in the 60-yard high hurdles. He'll be good for 10 or more points in the big meet at Birmingham.

And in the 880, Bengals King Mott and sophomore Ernest Walls ran one-two. More bad news for their outdoor foes.

But a real sparkler in the '57 LSU track picture is newcomer Jerry Moore, who brought the crowd of some 2,500 at Montgomery to its feet by clearing 14-4 1/2 in the pole vault. That's plenty capable of taking over the crown left vacant by Florida's graduated Earl Poucher.

Moreau, who always comes up with a crack mile relay team, has another in the persons of Mott, Wall, Bobby Mack and Carpenter. They did it in 3:35.5 Saturday night, a good performance considering they lacked top flight competition and were running on a tight track (9 1/2 laps to the mile).

If the Bengals are stopped this year at Birmingham, it will have to be the Gators who do it. Although Georgia Tech picked up but five points, it was pretty well established that Fred Berman is well on his way to being one of the top-flight shot putters in college circles. Fred's winning toss for all of Tech's points was 54-3 1/2, well ahead of his early season form of last year and better than his SEC outdoor mark of 53-11 1/2.

Another bright spot in the Tech picture was the victories in the freshmen 60 and 60 high hurdles by Vidalia flyer James Brantley. Taking up where he left off last year as a high schooler, James stepped the dash in .64 and the hurdles in .79.

Georgia's ace Bill Duckworth had to be left behind for the simple reason there is no place for javelin thruster in indoor meets, but Denny Jackson, the speedy 440 man, picked up a second in the 60-yard dash, proving he can go at any dash distance.

Vol Alumni Meet Tuesday
Alumni of the University of Tennessee will gather and go in a body to the Georgia Tech-Tennessee basketball game Tuesday night.

A dinner will be held at the Georgian Terrace at 6 p.m. All interested are asked to call Ed Brown at CEder 7-0910 to make reservations.

Region 3-AA opens final play-offs while 2-AA begins sub-region eliminations Monday to launch a full week of state basketball tournament play.

The other AA teams take a rest until Wednesday when the remaining regions begin final play-offs. But the state's B and C teams get busy Monday, too, with sub-district eliminations scheduled in nearly every district.

Region 3-AA begins its playoffs at North Whitfield Monday at 4 p.m. with Murray County's girls and Calhoun meeting in the opening game.

In other Monday games Cherokee's boys play Rockmart at 5:35; Cartersville girls play North Whitfield at 8 and West Fannin boys play Lafayette at 9:35.

Murray County has been topped in the boys' division and doesn't play until Tuesday, meeting Cartersville at 4 p.m. Rockmart is seeded second in the boys' grouping. Cherokee County and West Fannin are seeded one-two in the girls' division.

Baxley and Fitzgerald will be the site of Region 2-AA's preliminary eliminations. Baxley is host to the northern division's five teams and four teams from the southern half get together at Fitzgerald.

Opening-round games at Baxley match Eastman and Jesup girls at 6:30; Eastman and Baxley boys at 7:45 and Alma and Baxley girls in the 9 o'clock finale. Opening-round games at Fitzgerald will have the Valdosta girls playing Berrien at 7:30 and Fitzgerald boys playing Waycross in the second game.

Both sub-region meets end Wednesday with the winning and runner-up teams meeting at Douglas County to decide the region title and berths in the state playoffs.

Region 1-AA decided its finalists Saturday night and will begin the region playoffs Thursday at Warner Robins. Tifton's girls' and boys' teams won in the northern division tournament at Tifton, and Miller County's boys and Cairo's girls captured the southern half.

The Tifton girls edged Americus in the Saturday night sub-region finale, 69-67, on the sharp shooting of guards Luwail Stuard and Herschel Carswell, who fired 23 and 25 points, respectively.

Talking Dog Contest Reminiscent of Radio

By VIRGINIA VIDA

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—It didn't take TV long to get around to some of the un-intellectual games that infested the airwaves in the hey-day of radio.

CAMERA ALOFT

Televiewers Share Thrill Of Jet Ride

By JACK GOULD

(Copyright 1967 by The New York Times Co.)
NEW YORK, Feb. 17—A live television camera was put in the cockpit of a jet interceptor plane this afternoon.

A set of cameras saw the pilot in action and shared his view of the horizon ahead. It was quite a technical feat.

The unusual pickup was part of the "Wide World of Sports" program. The flight took place over an air base in California. There was one disappointment, however. The National Broadcasting Co. had hoped to receive a picture from the plane as it passed through the sound barrier; at that precise moment the image disappeared. It was not the first time that a live camera had been placed in a plane; the British Broadcasting Corp. achieved remarkable results in England some years ago.

The sense of being aloft today was uncanny, especially when the camera panned out above the clouds. Prior to losing the picture during the penetration of the sound barrier, the quality of the image was often extraordinarily good. The signals were relayed from a transmitter on the plane to a receiving antenna perched on a radar tracking tower; this enabled the antenna to be pinpointed on the plane while the craft was moving at some 700 miles an hour.

The plane pickup was the climax of one of the better installments of "Wide World of Sports." Today the program abandoned its nervous and flighty ways of the past and stayed long enough with each segment so that the whole program had some depth and substance. Such an improvement has long been needed on "Wide World of Sports" and it is good to see that it has been made.

Among the segments was a visit to the top of an office building being constructed in Denver; the camera was perched on the steel framework and the views down toward the street made one fairly shudder.

"Wide World of Sports" should adhere to its revised format; it is working well.

We are currently in the midst of a talking-dog contest on one network and a nation-wide guessing game called "Mr. Silhouette" on the other.

Of the two, I think the dog thing is the most sensible. After all, the dogs must talk to the two-syllable words and that's something neither Rin Tin Tin nor Lassie can do.

But this "Mr. Silhouette" contest—a sort of warmed-over "Mrs. Hush" or "Walking Man" gag—is a cheap way of drumming up a crowd.

Ever stop to figure how much it's costing per viewer to give away a prize of $12,000? Ain't much.

A family reunion which is apt to stir up quite a commotion will take place on TV Monday night (Channel 2 at 11:30 p.m.).

The Marx Brothers, all five of them, will reunite for the first time in public in 20 years. They last appeared together in public in the mid 1930's, at which time Zeppo dropped out of the act. Since that time Groucho has starred on "You Bet Your Life," Chico and Harpo have been making nightclub and TV appearances. Gummie is now a talent agent.

The reason for the family gathering is Chico's opening in "The Fifth Season" at the Civic Playhouse in Los Angeles.

Y'all come!

Bette Davis is the latest of the screen stars to sign for TV. Miss Davis, whose screen roles have been infrequent—may have something to do with her move into video—will be starred in the Ford Theater's "Footnote on a Doll," which is based on an incident in the life of Dolly Madison.

I hope someone has told Bette the tight shooting schedules in TV don't permit any flashes of temperament.

Star Buddy Hackett Unhurt, Stanley's Producer Is Happy

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—The end of a noble experiment in television comes March 11 when the final "Stanley" show appears on NBC.

The idea of producer Max Liebman to do a situation comedy series live when all other such were on film must be accounted a failure from the purely commercial standpoint, inasmuch as the sponsor didn't see fit to go along with it for more than 19 of the half-hour productions, yet there are other considerations.

"The thing that I'm happiest about," said Liebman, "is that the series didn't do Buddy Hackett any harm. Just the opposite."

Hackett is the roly-poly young comic of night club background. Liebman picked to play the title role of a fellow who runs a newsstand in a big hotel.

"Buddy had a certain respectable stature as what we call a standup comic and he had received good notices in the one Broadway role he had," Liebman continued. "It would have been tragic had his work in 'Stanley' set him back in his career, and I would have felt very badly about it. But I think I can say that the series has done a lot for his career, and weekly exposure to millions of viewers certainly has made him better known than he ever has been."

Liebman is still all for live television. "That's the way I've worked for 10 years, and I don't want to do it any other way," he commented. "Those who put shows on film have their legitimate reasons."

Guest May Do the Dishes

(This is the first in a series of articles on the changing social scene in Philadelphia.)

By MILTON BRACKER
(Copyright 1957 by the New York Times Co.)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 17—Society in the nation's first capital is rooted in the pre-Revolutionary past. But it has been altered by the same 20th Century forces that have affected society, with a small s, all over the country.

Specifically:

1. There is a fox-hunting young matron in suburban Radnor who still rides to the hounds—when she can get a baby-sitter.

2. There is a butler of impeccable suavity—who turns up the next night at another home on the Main Line to the surprise of guests who saw him the night before. The fact is, he works strictly by engagement and is by day the chief guard of a bank.

3. In the magnificent shell of a 130-room mansion in the Whitemarsh Valley there is a research center for a salt company. Where the most important liquids used to be champagne and sparkling burgundy, they now include hydrofluoric acid and aminonaphthalene.

OTHER PHENOMENA

But these phenomena co-exist with others, as traditional as they are contemporary:

1. The Philadelphia Dancing Assemblies, which George Washington toasted on Feb. 23, 1792, when they were already 44 years old—and the Philadelphia Club, not formed until 1834, remain virtually crashproof.

2. Mothers of debutante daughters still book their coming-out parties five or six years in advance in a "date" book kept by a silver-haired man who in many cases booked a ball or dinner-dance not only for the mother as a girl but also for the mother's mother.

He is George W. Rehms, chief of the stationery department of J. E. Caldwell & Co. He must fit parties for 110 to 130 girls into 68 to 70 days, the season having been sharply cut by the great increase in the number of girls who go to college. Because of military service, the age of the young men invited has tended to drop.

3. Every Friday after an early lunch on or near Rittenhouse Square, a group of well-born ladies makes the short trip up Locust Street to the Academy of Music. This is for the afternoon concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra.

On the evening of Jan. 26, many of them were there for the centennial of the academy itself. Philadelphia has no cafe society and does not lionize what might be called "popular" celebrities. But for the centennial, a serious question arose: Would enough really large contributors have been attracted had not Danny Kaye and Dinah Shore been added to the program?

These are all aspects of the changing yet changeless social scene in William Penn's "green Country Towne." Around Philadelphia, as elsewhere, estates have dwindled. And the servant problem is so inescapable that an offer by a descendant of one manorial family to help another with the dinner dishes is not only proper; it also is likely to be accepted.

Yet such trends have not lessened the importance of the old names—Biddle, Cadwalader, Owen Biddle, Chew, Morris, Rush—at one or more levels of the city's life.

Among the 3,500,000 metropolitan Philadelphians who are not "society," or particularly interested in it, there is for the most part a harmonious and gently respectful awareness of the social tradition. Neither snobbery nor inverse snobbery is an obtrusive characteristic of the Philadelphia.

Philadelphia has been described as marking the confluence of the Biddle and the Drexel families. The social prestige of both is still great, although the first Biddles to be born in the city (e.g., Owen; in 1737; a friend of that itinerant Bostonian, Benjamin Franklin) considerably antedated the first Drexel.

Today, a young man speaking of friends on Chestnut Hill, firmly linked to both the Assemblies and the Philadelphia Club, may still acknowledge defensively, "Of course they're not Biddles."

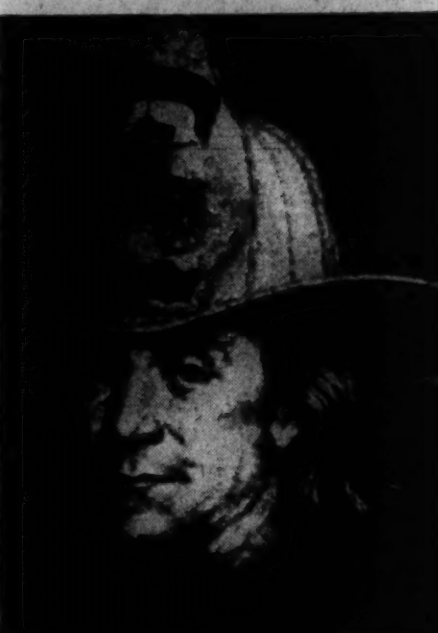

INNER CIRCLE IS WIDENING

Nevertheless, the inner circle in the nation's fourth largest city has tended to widen. Since Philadelphia's founding in 1682, there have been fortunes built on land, shipping and banking; and "new money" derived from oil, railroads and commerce. Some, but not all, of the new wealth has expressed itself in social aspiration and pressure.

In fact, a forthcoming study by a University of Pennsylvania sociologist will make a point that is confirmed by at least one banker with all of the "best" society ties. It is that many of Philadelphia's top executives now tend to make their business their society.

By gaining pre-eminence in it, they reach the apex of a rank-conscious structure made up of their associates and their wives. And sooner or later, because of the interlocking economic and financial ramifications of such structures, a daughter or granddaughter may be invited to join the Assemblies.

Thus some mothers of girls in newer families live from year to year in hope of the invitation to the Tuesday Afternoon Dancing Class at the Merion Cricket Club, which is the stepping-stone to the Friday and Saturday classes; and, ultimately, to the Assemblies.

Are You A Good Sport?

It's funny how with the passage of time the connotation of words changes. I always wanted to be what is known as a "good sport"—and now I can. Judge Jule W. Felton of the Court of Appeals has enlisted me in his campaign to get people to obey traffic laws out of a sense of sportsmanship and fair play.

The other day in the hall of the Capitol he asked me if I would put one of his bumper cards on my car and I was glad to. The card says, "Be a Good Sport. Obey Your Traffic Laws." It's said to be one of those double-edged numbers, because anybody who has it on his car is embarrassed to be caught hogging the road, switching from lane to lane or turning without signaling. I told Judge Felton I was willing to give it a try and I am.

But I think the main reason is that the connotation of the words, "good sport," has changed so in recent years. In my youth my mama always said, "Don't you dare do anything just to be a 'good sport.' If it's necessary to be a 'bad sport' to do what's safe and sensible, well then be a 'bad sport!'"

Which shows you how the term has progressed. In those depression-merry days of the '30s the good sports were the ones who went along with the crowd, stayed out late, went swimming with their clothes on, drove the wrong way on one-way streets. Anybody who had the nerve to disagree with the gang was a bad sport. (I think the term now is "party pooper.")

Anyhow, we now have a sort of unofficial Court of Appeals ruling that makes being a good sport not only respectable, but desirable.

"Some laws have public opinion behind them and the stronger the opinion the fewer are the crimes that are committed," said Judge Felton. "We people who pride ourselves on being good sports and good citizens will tear our shirts, so to speak, to catch a murderer, thief or rapist and yet, because of our laxity and indifference, we contribute to thousands of deaths every year and over a million injuries."

"We make this disgraceful contribution," he continued, "because we break traffic laws ourselves and we do not declare ourselves against our fellows who do the same thing. Upon the slightest reflection it at once becomes apparent that we are poor citizens and poor sports."

"We can drive it home to our people that we are poor sports when we violate our own laws, our own rules, whether an officer is watching us or not, just as we are poor sports to violate a rule in a baseball game, in a golf game, a card game or any other game."

Judge Felton says the principle is the same and he calls for "the pressure of public opinion behind our traffic laws."

Laws, the veteran jurist points out, are only as good in a democracy as a "zealous citizenry" wants them to be.

"We can't pay enough officers to catch up with the millions of Americans who deliberately violate traffic laws and others," he said. "The answer is the appeal to the minds and consciences of our people. They alone have the answer in their hearts. Our people will react patriotically and enthusiastically if they are made to understand the truth. They always have."

Anyone else for a bumper card? Judge Felton is your man.

Dolman Coats Stage a Comeback

Some of you, among my readers, must surely remember the days of the dolman coat—although I'll admit it was a long time ago! There's never been a more comfortable fashion in coats so I'm glad to report that it is making a comeback this spring.

The new dolmans were first introduced by the Paris dressmakers last fall but they are only now making their appearance here. As a whole they are slim in appearance, slightly tapered at the hem, yet full and roomy in the body. The sleeves are unmounted, and start very low.

I like these new dolmans in fine worsteds, in heavy silks that look like linens, and lightweight fleeces for early wear.

Army Couple Makes Exquisite Lamp Using Candle Holder From Austria

By YOLANDE GWIN

Mrs. C. P. Woelfer was strolling down the Mariahilferstrasse in Vienna, Austria, one afternoon in June, 1946, when she spied an exquisite porcelain candle holder in the window of an antique shop.

The candle holder, now as a lamp, sheds a bit of light on the life of Mrs. Woelfer and her husband, Lt. Col. Woelfer of the U.S. Army.

"Being Army people, we did not have too much money to spend on antiques," said Mrs. Woelfer at her quarters at Ft. McPherson. "We have spent any surplus amount on travel and sightseeing while in foreign countries. And then, too, I came from a family that did not go in for antique searching and collecting. We have a few accessories besides the lamp which I have found in various places."

FRUIT BOWL

Mrs. Woelfer said that when she bought the candle holder she also bought a matching fruit bowl. During a recent lamp-making class sponsored by the Ft. McPherson Woman's Club, through cooperation with Mrs. Mae West of the Smith-Hughes Vocational School, the candle holder was converted into a lamp. The shade is pink silk and frilly trimmings add a feminine touch.

Another interesting item used by the Army couple as a lamp base is a bronze burial urn which Col. Woelfer brought home from Korea. The urn, etched with a pastoral scene, could lead a double life as a vase. It was given to the officer by a Korean soldier.

INKSTAND

Mrs. Woelfer has an attractive inkstand of French baroque. The center is featured by a porcelain figure of an old woman seated with small children gathered at her feet.

The former Helen Cunningham of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs. Woelfer met her husband after church services at the Melrose Methodist Church in Kansas City. A native of Rockford, Iowa, he was a student at Kansas State College, in nearby Manhattan, Kan., and was working in Kansas City during the summer.

They were married in June, 1941, and since then have lived all over the United States and have had two details in Europe.

FOUR CHILDREN

Their four children, Suzanne, Carl William, Lill Ann and Roy, were born, in the order named, in California, Illinois, Texas and Kansas.

The Woelfers came to Ft. McPherson last summer from Germany where they had lived in Heidelberg and Bad Nauheim.

Making lamps is interesting, said Mrs. Woelfer, but it's more fun to play the accordion. It is her hobby and she took it up while in Europe.

"I love music and attended all the festivals in Austria. I couldn't carry a piano all all around with me, but the accordion isn't much of a problem," she said.

Good Will Auxiliary To Meet Wednesday

The Women's Auxiliary of Good Will Industries will meet Wednesday, Feb. 20, at 11 a.m. Stanley R. McAfee, member of the board of directors, will speak to the group. Mrs. Susan Howe, soloist at Inman Park Methodist Church, will present a musical program.

One member of the group describes trees sprouting white plumes at the entrance of the club. A large exposition balloon with a jeweled mannequin passenger will hang from the chandelier in the entrance hall, and a full-blooming French garden will greet the guests as they come into the foyer.

A nine-foot replica of the Eiffel Tower will rise from the ballroom floor, and cascading spring flowers will add grace to the structure. The arches in the ballroom will be bedecked with giant fleur-de-lis. And champagne and French perfume should make sure the revelers mount their magic carpets to Paris.

IT WAS A FULL YEAR BEFORE TERROR OF DOG WAS OVERCOME

The Fears of Childhood Should Be Accepted, Respected

Marcia Winn

Accept Child's Fears, They'll Outgrow Them

Little Dove was 3½ and completely fearless. Nothing, no one, bothered her. She went her staunch, independent way. She loved all animals large and small, and especially mice.

She even preferred to sleep in the dark. If there was anything that seemed to intimidate her, it was the vacuum cleaner. She had never liked its noise—up close.

Then one sunny day she went outdoors to ride her tricycle as usual. Suddenly shrieks of terror were heard. The entire household rushed out the back door.

Little Dove lay on the driveway, knocked from her tricycle by a great German police dog a neighbor had been keeping chained.

She wasn't hurt. She was terrified.

Then she clammed up. She never admitted fear. She simply avoided it. She refused to go outdoors at all.

The tricycle she so loved was abandoned, as were the swings

20 feet from the back door. It was two weeks before she would consent to go in the car to meet daddy's train.

This baby had undergone a genuine terrifying experience. Psychologists would term it a trauma. What should her parents have done? What could they do?

Actually, they did nothing. They did their best to comfort her and to sympathize. In time, they persuaded her to accompany them on walks. The walks went past the house where the police dog was chained.

Because little children really are extraordinarily brave, she never mentioned the dog again; she simply held tight to adult hands.

TERROR PASSED
In time the terror passed. It took a full year.

Now, several years later, she is again a completely self-reliant, independent girl who prefers to sleep in the dark and loves animals, large and small, especially mice.

There is a great germ of truth in the rehabilitation of Little Dove. It is that parents cannot pressure a child out of anything. The more you tell a child not to suck his thumb, the harder he sucks.

The more you tell him not to bite his nails, the more nervously he gnaws. The more you tell him not to be afraid of the dark, the more he cries for a night light. Pressure merely prolongs the agony.

RESPECT CHILD FEARS
Ignore any of these, accept them as passing phenomena, which they are, and they will pass. The child will grow out of them of his own accord. None should be met with shame, or even made light of.

The fears of childhood, while the opposite of charming, should be equally accepted and respected.

A hand to hold, a light in the night, and warm, matter-of-fact reassurance will do far more for the child's eventual conquest of his fears by himself than any, "There's nothing to be afraid of!" or "Be brave!"

'Goat Milk Your Complete Health Food,' Says J. O. Pitts

"Proven results are the best argument in any case," says J. O. Pitts, head of Pitts Goat Dairy, and goat-milk drinkers throughout Atlanta can vouch for the positive results obtained by having goat milk in their diet regularly.

Mr. Pitts points out that a great number of calls for goat milk come from persons suffering with stomach ulcers and various digestive disorders. "In seven cases out of 10, these folks obtain relief by drinking goat milk," he said. "We know that goat milk is, perhaps, the world's most complete food; a food that is just as good for babies as for grandma. It is a food that is not only nutritious, but has curative values as well. It is a complete food that can be assimilated by invalids as well as those in the best of health—to the betterment of each."

Pitts Goat Dairy has been in operation for 19 years. Mr. Pitts says that he is pleasantly surprised to have young mothers asking for goat milk, explaining that they, too, were fed on milk from Pitts Goat Dairy when they were youngsters. Incidentally, many goat-milk drinkers learn about the value of this product from their friends who have greatly benefited from drinking it. One person tells another, and the circle of goat-milk drinkers increases from year to year. As a matter of fact, most new goat-milk drinkers are happily surprised with the wonderfully delicious flavor of fresh, pasteurized goat milk.

"The longer we stay in the business," says Mr. Pitts, "the more

"FRISKY LITTLE FELLERS"—Young goats frolicking about at Pitts Goat Dairy at 3795 Old Fairburn road will be giving milk to Pitts Goat Dairy customers next season. These frisky, playful young goats also make dandy pets for children. Pitts Goat Dairy telephone numbers are PO. 7-9455 and PL. 5-4874.

we learn. Dentists now tell us that they find less decay in the teeth of children who drink goat milk since it is high in calcium and is a known bone-builder."

Mr. Pitts also calls attention to the fact that a number of his customers, ranging in ages from 55 to 90, have been drinking goat milk, a pint a day, for several years and have found it to be highly beneficial to them since it is so quickly digested.

Goat milk has a delicious, rich flavor and is easily digested by the weakest of stomachs. If you are nervous, a nemic, losing weight, run down or just tired and overworked, drink goat milk.

Babies thrive on goat milk. Babies suffering from colic, malnutrition, digestive disturbances, diarrhea, allergies, eczema and other disturbances react very satisfactorily while drinking goat milk.

What's the price of goat milk? Although prices in every category have advanced substantially, the cost of goat milk is the same as it was eight years ago—60 cents delivered, 50 cents at the dairy.

"Quite a few of our customers drive as much as 50 miles to get enough milk to last a week," says Mr. Pitts. "It keeps well. If you are some distance from the dairy it may pay you well to try this plan. All milk is delivered from 2650 Cascade Rd., and we invite the public to visit us either at the milk depot or at the herd location. Telephone PO. 7-9455 or PL. 5-4874 for prices and delivery schedules.

Prior Tire Distributes 'Royal Triton' Oil Here

"Royal Triton" motor oil, the remarkable purple oil developed exclusively for the job of giving automobile engines better and longer protection, is now being distributed by Prior Tire Co., 458 Peachtree St.

Developed by Union Oil Co. of California, using multimillion-dollar research facilities, Royal Triton has been proved in thousands of road tests that it gives today's high compression engines top performance and economy of operation. This unusual and distinctive purple oil, made of an exclusive combination of high quality base stocks and specially selected additives, which gives it its purple color, is designed to overcome even the most severe lubricating problems.

Royal Triton meets and exceeds the exacting requirements of the Armed Forces Specification M.I.L.-8-2104. This means that Royal Triton has been tested under the most rigorous conditions and has been approved as a military specification motor oil. It is the pioneer heavy duty oil made available for passenger cars. It was the original "stop and go" oil engineered specifically to reduce wear and maintain engine cleanliness. The superiority of its performance has changed the entire concept of engine lubrication.

Many motorists have asked the question: "How is Royal Triton able to prolong new car performance and reduce engine wear?" The answer is that the extra film strength of Royal Triton greatly reduces friction wear in modern high-compression engines. This is particularly true in the valve train of engines employing valves and hydraulic valve lifters. Abnormally high pressure points in these modern valve systems require that the lubricant have exceedingly high film strength. Royal Triton excels in this respect.

Royal Triton gives full protection against rusting. It has been proved in the crankcases of thousands of hard-driving motorists.

Prior Tire Co. will distribute Royal Triton motor oil to dealers, fleet operators and service sta-

Whether you drive hard and long and want the extra protection that this distinctive lubricant provides—or whether you drive only as the ordinary driver does—Royal Triton is your best investment in lubrication. Ask your dealer for Royal Triton . . . and feel the difference in your car's performance.

Established more than 47 years ago, Capital Electric is known as the home of the fine Marlboro line of 18th Century furniture reproductions by H. Sacks & Sons. These exact copies are all hand-crafted, and are finished by hand, using the old English method. Their soft patina seems to have mellowed for ages. Complete dining room furnishings are displayed for your help in selecting your own pieces. Among these beautiful copied pieces are break-fronts, chests, secretaries and occasional pieces galore.

Capital Electric is known throughout the South as the "Home of Lighting." They display and stock fixtures for modest means, as well as for the most luxurious in home lighting. Church lighting is one of their specialties, along with banks and public buildings.

Another Capital Electric specialty is the converting of 18th Century chandeliers into modern lighting fixtures. They maintain a fully equipped and staffed shop to do this work. your lighting problems. Fifteen years ago, Capital Electric saw the need in Atlanta for fine porcelains for home decoration. Beautiful lamps were desired that would conform to color schemes and the fine home furnishings of period designs. As a result, Capital Electric ventured into the old porcelain field, and today folks from all sections of the South visit Capital Electric Studios to choose from this wide selection. Many homeowners take justifiable pride in telling their friends that "this old Meissen lamp came from Capital Electric." Should you prefer Dresden, Sevres, old Berlin or any of the Continental porcelains, Capital has them.

Mrs. David Hamilton and Mrs.

Marie Isley, members of the sales staff, are capable and eager to assist customers in home furnishings and lighting. Their extensive knowledge makes your problems easier. Capital Electric Studios, Inc., is a locally owned business. Frank S. McGahey is chairman of the board. Dewey Foster is president and general manager and William J. Electric Sales & Service Distributes New Hoffman TV

Hoffman Electronics Corp. has appointed Electric Sales & Service Co. as Georgia distributors for its line of black and white television sets, color television, floating-sound hi-fi solardios, transistor radios and wireless remote tuning.

A popular sales leader on the West Coast for many years, Hoffman has been riding the crest of a success tidal wave right into the Eastern states.

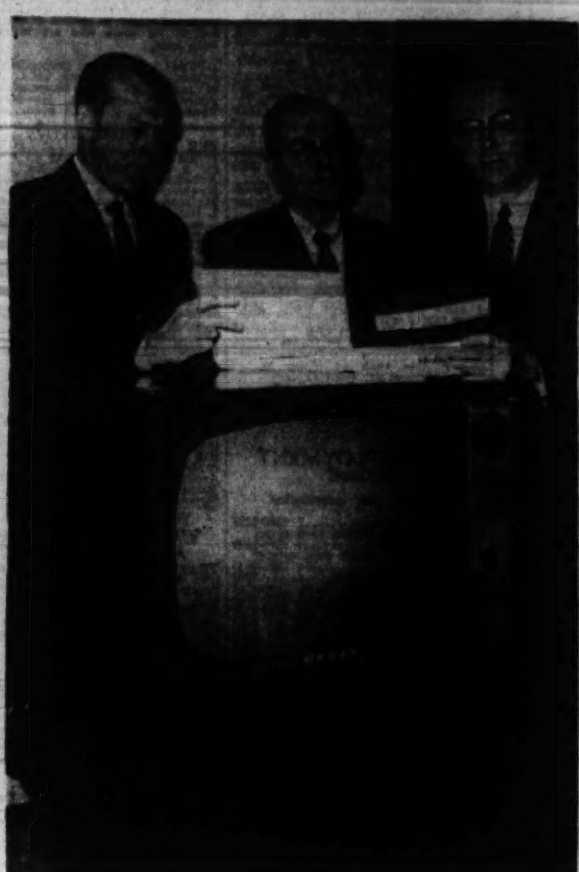

"If you have been looking for genuine quality in electronics equipment—both from a standpoint of performance and superb cabinetry—you need look no further," says Arthur I. Butts, president of Electric Sales & Service Co. "Hoffman literally has everything you could ask for—including a great deal of value for the money."

"One Hoffman exclusive, for example, is the Beam Rider. There is absolutely no other remote tuner like it. A tiny transmitter, only slightly larger than a pack of king-size cigarettes, does the magic trick of tuning a Hoffman TV set from as far as 25 feet away—without wires, flashlights or unsightly receiving devices on the front of the set. You just press the button and change the station."

Albert R. Arnau, executive vice president of Electric Sales & Service Co., explains the secret of the Beam Rider: "It's the most advanced TV tuning ever developed and uses the same techniques devised for guided missiles and other revolutionary electronic equipment."

"Hoffman also offers Dyna-Touch tuning. You simply press a button on the front of your set and your preselected channel appears. A big, easy-to-read channel number on a lighted panel tells you what station you're viewing."

The new black, easy-vision lens on every Hoffman black and white TV set makes TV easier to watch and keeps the picture bright all day long. Actual tests have shown that 10,000 watts of light power cannot wash out the picture.

In addition to its complete line of portable, table and console black and white TV sets, Arnau says that Hoffman is years ahead in the development of color television receivers with several table and console models to choose from.

Many Hoffman TV models—both color and black and white—are equipped with sounddrama hi-fi sound—with two bass speakers for low frequency tones and a separate hi-fi tweeter for treble and overtones. This feature saturates the room with hi-fi sound.

"To the family that is getting ready to invest money in electronic equipment that will give matchless performance and years of entertainment," Butts concludes, "I would say don't miss seeing the new Hoffman line. In these sets you will get what we believe is the greatest value available today."

Modern Recap Plant Gives Speedy Service

"If it's tires you need—new, used or if your present tires need recapping—we can take care of practically any size for passenger car or truck," says Sam B. Riddick, head of Riddick Sales Co., located at 1030 Marietta St., N.W.

This well-known local concern serves some 400 dealers in Georgia and parts of Alabama, Tennessee and the Carolinas. Operating one of the most modern tire retreading plants in this area, Riddick Sales Co. also distributes famous Dunlop and McCreary tires and does a bustling business in used tires, both for treading and for resale.

Riddick's stock of used tires is probably one of the most extensive in Georgia, and they are featured at big savings to dealers.

Constantly adding new equipment, Riddick Sales Co. maintains 30 Lodi tire-recapping steam-type molds in their shops, and can give one-day service on just about any job. The firm caps all size passenger tires and truck tire sizes up to and including the giant 16.00x20 sizes. Riddick's shops handle all grades tires, recapping them for longer wear and service.

In addition to the Dunlop tubeless tires for passenger cars, Riddick features new Dunlop tubeless tires for trucks. Built to rigid specifications and guaranteed for longer mileage, these Dunlop tires are recognized for their premium quality and excellence of workmanship.

Riddick Sales Co. maintains a staff of outside salesmen who call on dealers and fleet operators throughout the state. Two inside salesmen take care of orders at the plant. For recapping service, or for passenger and truck tires, new or used, call TR. 6-1012, or visit the Riddick Sales Co. plant at 1030 Marietta St., N.W.
